

Choir of the West performs at Seattle Center.

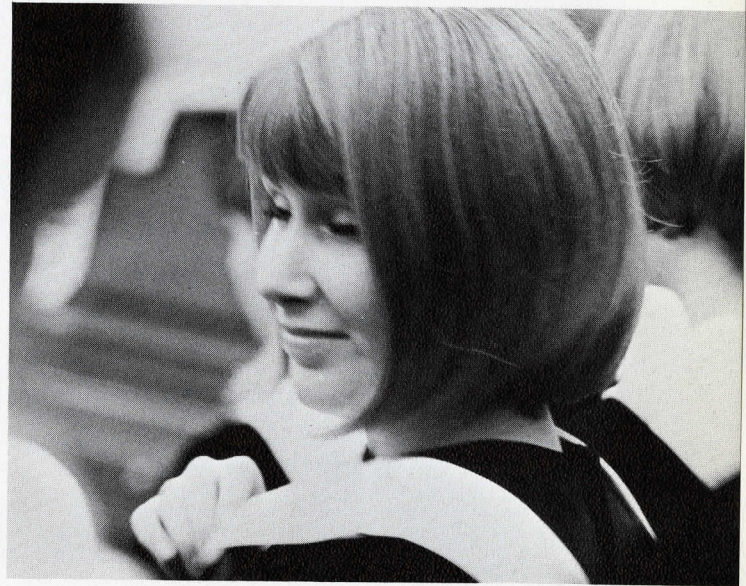

* Practice makes perfect.

Choir: Performing Public Relations

The Choir of the West is a select group of singers under the direction of Mr. Maurice Skones. Its members are selected by audition in the fall; membership is a high honor. In addition to its many appearances on campus, the Choir is very popular in this area. This year the Choir sang, among other places, at the Seattle Opera House.

This year's Choir officers were Tim Quigley, president; Phil Ranheim, vice president; Chris Morken, secretary-treasurer; and Julie Svendsen, historian.

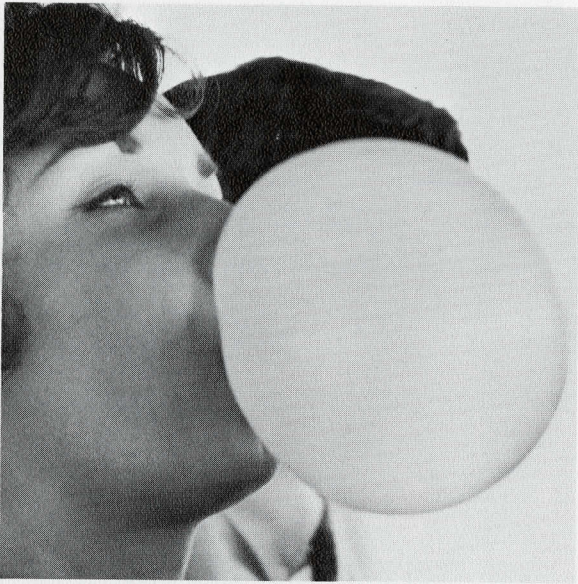

I can even put this thing on with my eyes closed.

Chris Morken — a picture of concentration: freckles and music.

Choir of the West:

Bubble gum's a great way to relieve Tour tensions.

Linda Sandaker talks to Uncle Milt and the bus driver before Tour starts.

Ron Johnson and Sue Richards fight the wind.

On the Move!

Choir Tour was a great success. This year's Tour found its way all through the Northwest. Next year the Choir plans an extensive tour through the Midwest. Upon returning from Tour, many members became actively involved in preparations for their appearance in the all-school musical, "South Pacific." According to Choir members, "There's nothing quite like Tour . . ."

Candy Halvorson rests between performances.

The Choir of the West performing at a Lutheran Church in Salt Lake City.

