

Please join us
for the
2017 Environmental Studies Capstone Presentations

Tuesday, May 9th

Morken Center for Learning and Technology – Room 103

1:45	Kimberly Nolasco	Cost-effective Analysis of Permeable Cement Installation and Purchasing Water for the City of Los Angeles
2:10	Luke Smith	Evaluating the Effects of Eco-Education on Children
2:35	Megan Beyers	Adolescents' Inclinations to be Physically Active in Urban Parks: An Investigation of Aesthetic Value and Pragmatic Function
3:00	Darcie Booth	Buyer Beware: Landslides and the Ethics Behind Hazard Disclosure
Break
3:40	Amber Hailey	For Further Consideration of Bees When Restoring for Native Pollinators
4:05	Renee Lumia	Mitigating Extreme Floods Through Precautionary Principles
4:30	Makayla Tolmie	An Ethical Evaluation of Current Commercial Aquaculture Practices
4:55	Hannah Ljunggren	The Distinct Effects of Religious Traditions of the Makah and Catholic Bishops of the Columbia Watershed on Conservation Efforts of Aquatic Systems in the Pacific Northwest
Break
5:35	Reza Refaei	Spiritual Persistence in the Changing Landscape of Japanese Internment
6:00	Caris Ristoff	The Values of Food Security Volunteerism

Thank you for your support!

Pacific Lutheran University Environmental Studies Program

We educate to engage actively and critically the complex relationships between people and the environment drawing upon integrated and interdisciplinary perspectives.