INTRODUCTION

The Faculty Handbook is both a practical and symbolic document.

As a practical document, the Faculty Handbook provides valuable information for PLU faculty on a vast array of topics. This is the document that informs our syllabi and classroom practices in its articulation of office hour requirements, attendance policies, and procedures for dealing with academic integrity violations. It is the guide we use in engaging in the work of standing and university committees, laying out their purpose, membership, and responsibilities. And it provides the blueprint for faculty members' professional development, insofar as the Faculty Handbook is where tenure and promotion criteria are described, where information about sabbatical leaves can be found, and where timelines for undergoing formal review are provided.

While other university publications should be part of each faculty member's library of resources (virtual or otherwise)—such as the Catalog, the Student Handbook, and the Personnel Policies and Procedures Manual—it is the Faculty Handbook that provides the most relevant information to our daily work as teachers, scholars, and university citizens, codifying our rights and responsibilities as faculty.

At the same time it serves a practical purpose, the Faculty Handbook is also a symbolic representation of one of the elements that sets us apart from other universities: our robust system of shared governance. Our shared governance system emphasizes participation, collaboration, communication, and transparency. As our governing document, the Faculty Handbook sets forth the roles faculty play in fulfilling the university's mission, and, where appropriate, how these roles dovetail with those of the other members of the campus community with whom we share this responsibility: namely, the Board of Regents, administration, staff, and students. The Faculty Handbook is a testament to our shared commitments.

The ninth edition of the Faculty Handbook is broken into six major sections. The handbook begins with the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws, which highlights the fundamental principles that govern the university, including the rights and duties of faculty, guidelines for Faculty Assembly, and the criteria for achieving tenure and promotion. The remaining sections provide details about the various aspects of faculty work, including our organizational structure, guiding philosophies, policies, and procedures.

An important part of our shared governance work is ensuring that the handbook accurately reflects our priorities. As such, the Faculty Handbook can be understood as a living document, always subject to revision. Nevertheless, while the words and punctuation may change, the essence of the Handbook remains constant: it serves as a hallmark of our collective identity as faculty members and university citizens.

MISSION AND HISTORY

Mission Statement

PLU seeks to educate students for lives of thoughtful inquiry, service, leadership and care—for other people, for their communities, and for the earth.

Approved by the Board of Regents, January 22, 2011.

History

Pacific Lutheran University was founded in 1890 by a group of Scandinavian Lutherans from the Puget Sound area. They were led by the Reverend Bjug Harstad, who became PLU's first president. In naming the university, these pioneers recognized the important role that a Lutheran educational institution on the western frontier of America could play in the emerging future of the region. They wanted the institution to help immigrants adjust to their new land and find jobs, but they also wanted it to produce graduates who would serve church and community. Education—and educating for service—was a venerated part of the Scandinavian and Lutheran traditions from which these pioneers came.

Although founded as a university, the institution functioned primarily as an academy until 1918, when it closed for two years because of complications produced by the creation of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America in 1917, regional collegiate rivalries, and World War I. It reopened as the two-year Pacific Lutheran College, after merging with Columbia College, previously located in Everett. Further consolidation occurred when Spokane College merged with PLC in 1929. Four-year baccalaureate degrees were first offered in education in 1939 and in the liberal arts in 1942. The institution was reorganized as a university in 1960, reclaiming its original name. It presently includes a College of Health Professions, College of Humanities, Interdisciplinary Studies, and Social Sciences, College of Natural Sciences, College of Professional Studies, and both graduate and continuing education programs.

PLU has been closely and productively affiliated with the Lutheran church throughout its history. It is now a university of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, owned by the more than six hundred congregations of Region 1 of the ELCA.

Many influences and individuals have combined to shape PLU and its regional, national, and increasingly international reputation for teaching, service and scholarship. A dedicated faculty and staff has been an extremely important factor. The school has enjoyed a strong musical tradition from the beginning, as well as noteworthy alumni achievements in public school teaching and administration, university teaching and scholarship, the pastoral ministry, the health sciences and healing arts, and business. At PLU, the liberal arts and professional education are closely integrated and collaborative in their educational philosophies, activities, and aspirations.

Pacific Lutheran University and the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA)

Pacific Lutheran University traces its roots to the ancient Greek academy, Jewish study of sacred texts, the Roman law court, to monastic libraries and medieval urban universities, and the schools of the Renaissance. In one of those Renaissance universities, established in Germany at the beginning of the sixteenth century, Martin Luther, a professor and priest, launched the reform which would eventually take his name, a reform which spread to other countries and grew in various ways. As a university professor, Luther's reform was shaped by the freedom of conscience, the need to engage one's society in pursuit of a humane future, the liberating capacities of a liberal arts curriculum, and the vocation of service in the world.

Pacific Lutheran University stands within this living tradition of Lutheran higher education, one that it shares with the 26 colleges and universities of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Steeped in the Lutheran commitment to freedom of thought and insistence on questioning, the university serves both church and society by welcoming faculty, students, and administrators from many cultural, ethnic, and religious traditions. Such diversity of viewpoint and methods in study rests at the heart of a theological tradition, which counsels humility and honesty in the pursuit of truth. In contrast to some church-related universities, the colleges and universities of the ELCA enjoy a supportive relationship with the many congregations who expect their schools to protect academic freedom, encourage disciplinary expertise, foster faithful criticism of cherished assumptions, and prepare their students for lives of service in the world. Indeed, the cherished hallmark of the Reformation – freedom – remains linked to its corollary – mature responsibility – to others, their communities, and this earth. Thus, the faculty of Pacific Lutheran University enjoy the support of a religious community committed to liberal learning at the service of a just, peaceful, and humane future.

Such a demand may be made following any vote for which the announced totals add to less than a quorum.

The chair’s announcement of the voting result shall include the number of members voting on each side of the question and the number, if any, who explicitly respond to acknowledge their presence without casting a vote. Business may also be conducted by unanimous consent.

Article V. - RANK AND TENURE AND LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Section 1. PROMOTION, RANK, AND TENURE

Pacific Lutheran University seeks faculty with the highest possible qualifications, and offers them conditions of employment commensurate with their professional achievement and conducive to high-quality performance. The university thrives upon the commitment and energy of a diverse faculty. Its programs depend as well upon the variety of faculty appointments that are made, appropriately tenured and untenured, full-time and part-time, emeritus and honorary.

Decisions on appointments are made by the president of the university with the approval of the Board of Regents after consultation with the provost and with the department and the division, school or college. Decisions on promotions and the granting of tenure are made by the president of the university with the approval of the Board of Regents after consultation with the provost, the department, the division, school, or college, and the faculty committee concerned with rank and tenure. Decisions on the granting of credit toward tenure beyond the normal three-year maximum are made by the president of the university after consultation with the provost, the department, the division, school, or college, and the faculty committee concerned with rank and tenure.

The following system aims to lighten the burden of the administration in performing this complex task by setting up specific policies and by utilizing the faculty in the gathering and evaluating of evidence and in serving generally in an advisory capacity.

A. Rules of Tenure

1. Tenure confirms the right of individual faculty members to explore and profess the nature of truth in their disciplines without discriminatory action being threatened or taken against them. "Discriminatory action" may include unjustified loss of teaching position. It may also consist of arbitrary distinctions in the setting of salaries or the discriminatory provision of or the withholding of university services or facilities. Tenure means, therefore, that a teacher's academic freedom or employment may not be restricted or terminated without observance of due process. Specifically, a tenured faculty member is guaranteed that their position will not be terminated except for the following reasons:
 - a. Regular retirement.
 - b. Financial exigency. In the event this should be demonstrated to exist, the decisions on which tenured faculty will be released must be made on the basis of duly established retrenchment policies. The faculty and administration are expected to provide input, counsel, and recommendations during the formulation and implementation of such policies.
 - c. Discontinuance or reduction of an academic unit or sub-unit. Academic unit shall refer to a college, school, division, or department. Academic sub-unit shall refer to (a) a recognized program of study within an academic unit; (b) recognized subdivisions of an academic discipline. The university shall make an effort to relocate tenured faculty members in appropriate positions in the institution if such are available.
 - d. For cause, which shall mean one or more of the following:

- i. Gross neglect of duties.
 - ii. Physical or mental incapacity.
 - iii. Moral turpitude.
 - iv. Conviction of a felony.
 - v. Witting and incorrigible breach of the signed contract with the university.
 - vi. Unfitness to teach, e.g., because of incompetence in one's subject, failure to communicate effectively, or lack of scholarly objectivity or integrity in the classroom.
- 2. While the university must protect all faculty members' rights, faculty members must be sensitive to the university's needs and seek to fulfill the best ideals and expectations of the academic profession as a whole and one's discipline in particular. Among the individual's obligations are:
 - a. To perform faithfully all the services for which one is engaged, in keeping with the main qualifications bearing upon tenure (see Bylaws, Article V, Section 1, Subsection B.2).
 - b. To undergo thorough periodic review of one's professional activities and cooperate in attempts to improve areas showing need of it.
 - c. To make use of the provisions for sabbatical leaves of absence (see Bylaws, Article V, Section 3).
- 3. In any attempt to remove a tenured faculty member from their position or to take other disciplinary action against them, the burden of providing adequate cause lies with the university.
- 4. Eligibility for tenure at Pacific Lutheran University is related primarily to the function of teaching. Teachers who are appointed to the rank of assistant professor, associate professor, and professor shall have the rights and privileges appropriate to their rank including tenure or the eligibility for tenure. The same rights and privileges apply to those appointed to the position of librarian.
 - a. Tenure-eligible part-time faculty must also receive appointment to one of the ranks eligible for tenure. All other part-time teachers shall not be appointed to one of the ranks eligible for tenure.
 - b. Academic tenure does not pertain to administrative positions. An administrator holds a position subject not to the rules of tenure but rather to the conditions of a contract. While no administrative appointment shall be considered tenured nor of itself confer eligibility for tenure, an individual already holding a tenured appointment at Pacific Lutheran University upon assuming an administrative position shall retain previously acquired tenure.
 - c. Upon recommendation of the president and approval by the Board of Regents an administrator may be assigned faculty status with all attendant rights and privileges except rank or eligibility for tenure.
 - d. Upon recommendation of a school or department and the approval of the president and the Board of Regents, an administrator may be assigned faculty rank within the school or department. Such an appointment to faculty rank and subsequent retention, promotion, or tenure shall be subject to normal procedures for evaluation of a candidate's academic qualification.
- 5. The terms and conditions of every appointment shall be stated in writing and be in the possession of both institution and appointee before the appointment is consummated. The contract for the initial appointment to a tenure-eligible position shall include a statement of the amount of probationary credit toward tenure to be allowed for service elsewhere and for service as contingent faculty at Pacific Lutheran University. Beginning with the appointment as regular faculty to the rank of assistant professor or a higher rank, the probationary period should not exceed the equivalent of six years of full-time service, including within this period full-time service in all institutions of higher education, but subject to the proviso that when, after a term of probationary service in one or more institutions, a teacher is appointed to Pacific Lutheran University it may be agreed in writing that this appointment provides for a probationary period of up to six years. Upon appointment to full-time service as regular faculty at the rank of assistant professor or a higher rank, a person shall be granted up to four years probationary credit toward tenure on a prorated basis in proportion to course-load equivalency. In ordinary circumstances, the probationary period shall include a minimum equivalent of three years as regular faculty at Pacific Lutheran University. A faculty member may at their own volition relinquish in writing all or part of any credit granted for service elsewhere but this written statement must be filed with the provost prior to the beginning of what would otherwise be the faculty member's sixth year of credit toward tenure at Pacific Lutheran University. In cases where a faculty member takes leave, whether the period of leave shall be counted toward the probationary period shall be decided and specified at the time the leave is granted. Other terms and conditions relating to tenure shall be those specified in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws at the time of the individual's initial appointment to a tenure-eligible rank unless, at the date that formal consideration for tenure begins, they explicitly request, in writing, that the provisions in effect at that later date be applied to their case.

6. In exceptional circumstances, more than three years of credit may be granted at any time, and tenure may be granted at any time prior to the completion of the usual six-year probationary period but only after full consultation with the department and division, school, or college concerned, the provost, and the faculty committee concerned with rank and tenure.
 7. Termination for a cause of a tenured appointment, or the dismissal for cause of a person previous to the expiration of a term appointment, shall be considered both by the appropriate faculty committee or committees, and by the Board of Regents. In all cases where the facts are in dispute, the accused person shall be informed before the hearing in writing of the charges against them and shall have the opportunity to be heard in their own defense by all bodies which pass judgment upon the case. They shall be permitted to have with them an adviser of their own choosing who may act as counsel. There shall be a full transcription of the hearing available to the parties concerned. In the hearing of charges of incompetence, the testimony shall include that of teachers and other scholars, whether from Pacific Lutheran University or other institutions. Persons on tenure who are dismissed for reasons not involving moral turpitude shall receive their salaries for at least a year from the date of notification of dismissal, whether or not they are continued in their duties during that time.
 8. Notice of non-reappointment, or of intention not to recommend reappointment to the Board of Regents, shall be given in writing according to the following standards for all tenure eligible faculty, full-time and part-time:
 - a. Not later than March 1 of the first academic year of service, if the appointment expires at the end of that year; or, if a one-year appointment expires during an academic year, at least three months in advance of its termination.
 - b. Not later than December 15 of the second academic year of service, if the appointment expires at the end of that year; or, if an initial two-year appointment terminates during an academic year, at least six months in advance of its termination.
 - c. At least twelve months before the expiration of an appointment after two or more years at Pacific Lutheran University.
- B. Appointment, Promotion, and Rank
1. General Policies Concerning Appointment, Promotion, and Tenure
 - a. Every faculty member is expected to be committed to the mission and objectives of the university; this is a sine qua non of appointment and retention.
 - b. The university values as its highest priority excellence in teaching.
 - c. Decisions about tenure involve a judgment about the overall, long-term value of a candidate to the university and its mission. Such judgments are based upon recognition of significant accomplishment and promise of continued achievement. The criteria given below are of paramount importance in arriving at these decisions, and are to be applied jointly and in a qualitative fashion. Other relevant factors may also be considered.

- d. Decisions about promotion are likewise qualitative and global, and involve a judgment about the accomplishments of a faculty member. Years of service shall be considered, but shall not compensate for inadequate performance.
- e. Budgetary factors will not be considered by the faculty committee charged with evaluating candidates for tenure or promotion.
- f. The specific criteria for tenure and promotion are as follows. Strength in each area is expected, although an overall appraisal of a candidate's qualifications is the final consideration.

2. Criteria for Tenure and Promotion

Each member of the faculty below the rank of professor may be considered annually for promotion. However, several years of teaching are ordinarily needed for adequate evaluation.
- b. All promotions in rank are to be made by the Board of Regents upon recommendation of the president of the university. The recommendations of the president shall be based upon prior recommendation of the provost, appropriate deans, school, college, and departmental administrators, and in consultation with the faculty committee concerned with rank and tenure. - A. The granting of any leave shall be made on the basis of published eligibility and selection criteria established via regular provisions for joint faculty-administration-board action.  3. Ordinarily all non-teaching activities such as advisement of students and committee assignments remain the privilege and responsibility of the faculty member on reduced load.
 4. Salary and benefits for the faculty member shall be provided in accordance with published policies.

Article VI. - GRIEVANCE, DISCIPLINARY, AND DISMISSAL PROCEDURES

Section 1. GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

- A. Any faculty member who feels that they have cause for grievance and who wants to formally resolve that grievance petition either the Conciliation Committee or the University Dispute Resolution Committee for redress. The faculty member may petition either of these committees to hear the grievance. Once either committee has agreed to hear the grievance, that committee's judgment may not be appealed to the other committee.
- B. The Conciliation Committee
 - 1. The Conciliation Committee of the faculty shall consist of the chairs of five standing committees as follows: Academic Performance & Integrity, Educational Policies, Faculty Affairs, Governance, and Rank and Tenure. The chair of the Rank and Tenure Committee shall act as initial convener of the committee. At its initial meeting, the committee shall elect a chair and a secretary.
 - 2. If any one or more of these Conciliation Committee members is judged an interested party in a case by the remaining members of the Conciliation Committee, the committee represented shall replace that person during consideration of that case.
 - 3. If, after reviewing the materials provided, the committee decides that the grievance has no basis, it shall so notify the petitioner. If the committee feels that further investigation is needed, they may seek additional materials from one or more of the parties. If at the end of further investigation, the committee decides that the grievance has no basis, it shall so notify the petitioner. If the committee determines there is a basis for investigation, they shall consider the pertinent facts and seek to bring about a settlement of the issue satisfactory to the parties. If within a period of thirty days (or a longer period acceptable to all parties) the committee reaches the opinion that a settlement is not obtainable, it shall arbitrate the points in dispute. The committee shall report its arbitration decision to the president and the petitioner. Within thirty days of receipt of that decision, the president and the petitioner shall notify each other and the committee of their acceptance or rejection of it. If either rejects the committee's decision, they may appeal to the Board of Regents within thirty days of that rejection.
 - 4. In cases in which problems of inadequate or unclear policy are found, the Conciliation Committee shall inform the faculty in writing not of names or other details of the case but of all issues of policy and procedure and shall give its recommendations on corrections.
- C. Information about the University Dispute Resolution Committee and the university's Grievance Policy and Procedures can be found in the Personnel Manual.

Section 2. DISCIPLINARY AND DISMISSAL PROCEDURES

- A. In any challenge of a faculty member's actions, rights, or standing, utmost care shall be taken to protect the personal and professional reputations of all parties concerned. Adequate cause for disciplinary action or dismissal (see Bylaws, Article V, Section 1) will be related, directly and substantially, to the fitness of the faculty member in their professional capacity as a teacher or researcher. Disciplinary action or dismissal will not be used to restrain faculty members in their exercise of academic freedom or their rights as American citizens.

B. Disciplinary Action

Any disciplinary action taken against a faculty member shall be subject to the safeguards of due process. If the action is deemed unwarranted or unjust by the faculty member, they may petition the Conciliation Committee for redress.

C. Suspension

In certain highly unusual cases such as those which could result in harm to students, colleagues, or the individual faculty member, that faculty member may be summarily suspended by the president. The suspension shall be with full continuing pay and will be subject to review by the Executive Committee of the Board of Regents. The suspension order and the reason for such summary action shall be given the faculty member in writing and formal disciplinary, termination, or dismissal proceedings shall be begun within no less than thirty and no more than sixty days of that time.

D. Dismissal Procedures

1. Prerequisites for Dismissal Action Dismissal of a non-tenured faculty member before the end of the specified term or of a faculty member with continuous tenure for adequate cause will be preceded by the following courses of action:

- a. Discussions between the faculty member and appropriate administrative officers looking toward a mutual settlement.
- b. For causes relating to teaching and scholarly function, observation and evaluation of one's performance by colleagues, professional peers, and administrators, to be followed by counsel and assistance (including appropriate opportunities for leave) to effect improvement if it is determined that the faculty member is not performing at acceptable levels.
- c. Inquiry by the Conciliation Committee which may, failing to effect an accommodation, recommend whether dismissal proceedings should be undertaken.

2. Formal Dismissal Action

A written statement of specific grounds for dismissal action shall be prepared by the president or the president's delegate and presented to the faculty member. The faculty member will have the right to be heard by an elected faculty hearing committee to be called the Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee.

E. Formal Dismissal Hearing

1. The Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee shall consist of five members of the permanent faculty who have had at least four years of service at Pacific Lutheran University. They shall be elected as follows: Each September, the Governance Committee shall nominate a panel of fifteen. From these nominees the elected faculty members of Faculty Executive Committee shall elect a panel of ten and the results of this election shall be reported to the faculty. The five with the highest number of votes shall constitute the Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee. The remaining five shall serve as alternates in case of vacancies or if in the opinion of the committee any of its members should be disqualified in a particular case. Such alternates shall be chosen in order of highest votes received in the election. These ten are elected to a term of one calendar year beginning on October 15 and ending on October 14 of the following year. Cases still in process at the end of the stipulated calendar year will be completed by the committee assigned to that case.
2. Members of the Conciliation Committee shall not serve on the Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee. In the hearing of any case, members will remove themselves from the case, either at the request of a party or on their own initiative, if they deem themselves disqualified for bias or interest. Each party will have a maximum of two challenges without stated cause.

- a. Service of notice of hearing with specific charges in writing will be made at least 20 days prior to the hearing. The faculty member may waive a hearing or may respond to the charges in writing at any time before the hearing. If the faculty member waives a hearing, but denies the charges against them or asserts that the charges do not support a finding of adequate cause, the hearing tribunal will evaluate all available evidence and rest its recommendation upon the evidence in the record.
- b. The Hearing Committee, in consultation with the president and the faculty member, will exercise its judgment as to whether the hearing should be public or private.
- c. During the proceedings the faculty member will be permitted to have an academic advisor and counsel of their own choice.
- d. At the request of either party or the Hearing Committee, a representative of a responsible educational association shall be permitted to attend the proceedings as an observer.
- e. A verbatim record of the hearing or hearings will be taken and a typewritten copy will be made available without cost to the faculty member at their request.
- f. The hearing tribunal will grant adjournments to enable either party to investigate evidence as to which a valid claim of surprise is made.
- g. The faculty member will be afforded an opportunity to obtain necessary witnesses and documentary or other evidence, and the administration of the institution will, insofar as it is possible for it to do so, secure the cooperation of such witnesses and make available necessary documents and other evidence within its control.
- h. The faculty member and the administration will have the right to confront and cross-examine all witnesses. Where the witness cannot or will not appear, but the committee determined that the interests of justice require admission of the witness' statement, the committee will identify the witness, disclose their statement, and if possible provide for interrogatories.
- i. In the hearing of charges of incompetence, the testimony shall include that of qualified faculty members from this or other institutions of higher education.
- j. The Hearing Committee will not be bound by strict rules of legal evidence, and may admit any evidence which is of probative value in determining the issues involved. Every possible effort will be made to obtain the most reliable evidence available.
- k. The findings of fact and the decision will be based solely on the hearing record.
- l. Except for such simple announcements as may be required, covering the time of the hearing and similar matters, public statements and publicity about the case by either the faculty member or administrative officers will be avoided so far as possible until the proceedings have been completed, including consideration by the governing board of the institution. The president and the faculty member will be notified of the decision in writing and will be given a copy of the record of the hearing.
- m. If the Hearing Committee concludes that adequate cause for dismissal has not been established by the evidence in the record, it will so report to the president. If the president rejects the report, reasons for doing so will be reported, in writing, to the Hearing Committee and to the faculty member, and the president will provide an opportunity for response before transmitting the case to the governing board. If the Hearing Committee concludes that adequate cause for a dismissal has been established, but that an academic penalty less than dismissal would be more appropriate, it will so recommend, with supporting reasons. If the president transmits a recommendation for dismissal to the Board of Regents when the faculty Hearing Committee has not recommended dismissal, a copy of the record of the dismissal hearing, the committee's decision and findings of fact, and any final statements by the faculty member shall also be transmitted to the Board of Regents.

Article VIII. - AMENDMENTS

Section 1. AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION

- A. A proposed amendment to the Constitution will be placed on the agenda of the Faculty Assembly at the request of the Board of Regents, the president of the university, any faculty committee, or at the written request of any fifteen members of the faculty.
- B. At the meeting of the Faculty Assembly in which the amendment is introduced, the amendment may be discussed, but no other action may be taken.
- C. At the next regular meeting of the assembly (or special meeting if called for this purpose), the amendment shall have priority over other unfinished business. Individuals proposing to amend the amendment are responsible for having a written copy of their proposal distributed with the agenda. The amendment may be amended, but a final vote on the amendment may not be taken.
- D. At the next regular meeting of the assembly (or special meeting if called for this purpose), the amendment shall have priority over other unfinished business, and it shall not be open to further amendment.

SECTION II: ASPECTS OF FACULTY ORGANIZATION

Many elements of faculty membership and faculty organization are included in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws (Section II of the Faculty Handbook). Only the additional elements that are not part of the constitution or bylaws and whose origin and status instead are faculty legislation or administrative policy are included in this section.

Part I. - DEFINITION OF FACULTY

Section 1. FACULTY MEMBERSHIP

All persons hired for a role that specifically requires teaching contact with students or professional library responsibilities will be classified as regular faculty or contingent faculty. Faculty membership also includes administrative faculty and emeriti faculty.

“Full-time” refers to an individual with a 1.00 FTE contract with the university in a given academic year.

“Part-time” refers to an individual with less than a 1.00 FTE contract with the university in a given academic year.

A. Regular Faculty

1. Regular Faculty status applies to those persons whose major assignment is the teaching of courses as listed in the university catalog or the performance of professional librarian responsibilities.  2. Professor emeriti shall have the same rights and privileges as other members of the faculty except the right to vote in the Faculty Assembly and the right to vote on matters of personnel recommendations (e.g. the election of chair and dean, and hiring of new faculty).

Section 2. FACULTY RANKS AND CLASSIFICATIONS

Assignment of faculty rank or classification depends on the faculty member's qualifications and the nature of the assignment at the time of appointment.

A. Rank in Tenure-Eligible Regular Faculty Lines

1. Three rank designations apply to faculty in tenure-eligible lines:
 - a. Assistant Professor
 - b. Associate Professor
 - c. Professor
2. The qualifications associated with each of the above ranks are specified in the Bylaws, Article V, Section 1, Subsection B.4.

B. Rank in Non-Tenure-Eligible Contingent Faculty Lines

1. Four rank designations apply to faculty in non-tenure-eligible lines:

C. Classification in non-tenure-eligible contingent faculty lines

1. Affiliate Instructors are faculty who were hired into a tenure-eligible position but have failed to complete the terminal degree by the date specified in the affiliate instructor's initial contract. A terminal contract for one academic year will be issued upon failure to complete the terminal degree by the date specified in the affiliate instructor's initial contract. Other than eligibility for tenure, full-time affiliate instructors shall have the same privileges and obligations of regular full-

- time faculty. Time spent at the rank of affiliate instructor shall not accrue eligibility for tenure.
2. Lecturers or Senior Lecturers are appointed to teach specific courses or sections in a given academic term. Their course load is normally less than half-time over a full academic year, and they are paid on a per-course basis. The distinction between these two classifications is one of teaching experience. Lecturers should not normally teach more than ten percent (10%) of a department or school's credit hours in a given year, except in unusual circumstances and where the affected department or school agrees. They may be reappointed as needed by the institution.
 3. Visiting Faculty (Professor, Associate Professor, Assistant Professor, and Instructor) are appointed to meet the temporary needs of the university (for example, sabbatical leave replacements). Visiting Faculty are appointed and salaried for a specific length of time, usually from one semester to a maximum of two full-time equivalent (FTE) academic years. In this context, the distinction among these four classifications is one of academic qualifications as described in Article V, Section 1 of the Bylaws.
 4. Clinical Faculty or Resident Faculty (Professors, Associate Professors, Assistant Professors, and Instructors) are appointed to meet the needs of the university. They are appointed and salaried for a specific length of time, and they may be reappointed for a length of service that exceeds two FTE academic years. The Clinical Faculty designation usually, though not necessarily, applies to particular academic units as conforming to professional practice. Whether Clinical or Resident, the distinction in this context among the four classifications of Clinical (Resident) Professor, Clinical (Resident) Associate Professor, Clinical (Resident) Assistant Professor, and Clinical (Resident) Instructor is one of academic qualifications as described in Article V, Section 1 of the Bylaws.
 5. Faculty Fellows are practicing professionals appointed for a given academic term or year. Faculty fellows are appointed to provide service, which may include teaching, to academic programs.

Part II. - ASSOCIATES TO THE FACULTY ASSEMBLY

Section 1.

- A. All persons in this category are hired in a primary role to support the academic mission of the university. Teaching contact is not required for persons in this category.
- B. Associates to the Faculty Assembly hold university appointments which are not intrinsically related to a recognized academic field or discipline, but which entail substantial involvement with academic programs and faculty-related responsibilities. Whether such involvement is sufficiently constant and substantial in any given case to warrant this designation is to be decided by the provost and the president. Consequently, this designation does not attach to an individual for the term of their employment at PLU, but is assigned only so long as the person holds a qualified position.
- C. The provost, in consultation with the chair of the faculty, shall be responsible for establishing the list of those positions which qualify for this status.
- D. Associates to the Faculty Assembly have the privilege of voice, in the Faculty Assembly. Associates to the Faculty Assembly do not have the right to vote in Faculty Assembly or in electronic balloting.
- E. Associates to the Faculty Assembly who teach are subject to review of their teaching through the usual process of teaching evaluations.

Part III. - VISITING SCHOLARS

Visiting Scholars are appointed subject to the policies described under Section IV Personnel Policies and Employment Benefits, Policy Guidelines for Visiting Scholar Appointments. They provide service to academic programs and are usually faculty on leave from other institutions of higher education. Unless also appointed to a position with faculty status, visiting scholars hold no other rank, receive no compensation, teach no courses, have neither voice nor vote in the Faculty Assembly, have no vote in electronic balloting, and may not vote on matters of personnel (e.g. the election of chair and dean, and the hiring of new faculty). Visiting Scholars appointed to a position carrying faculty status are subject to the rules of that position as described elsewhere in this section.

Part IV. - OTHER PERSONNEL

A person who provides a service to the academic program, but who is not in one of the previously mentioned classifications, has neither voice nor vote in the Faculty Assembly, has no vote in electronic balloting, and may not vote on matters of personnel (e.g. the election of chair and dean, and the hiring of new faculty).

Part V. - FACULTY ELECTIONS

Faculty elections are conducted electronically. Ballots are normally to be completed within one week after distribution. Elections are conducted jointly by the Governance Committee and the faculty secretary, who acts jointly with the chair of the Governance Committee to officially certify the election results. After each election, a statement is issued to inform the faculty of the names of candidates who have been elected and of the positions still to be filled. At its discretion, the Governance Committee may inform the faculty of the total ballot count and of the rate of return of ballots.

Part VI. - VOTING ELIGIBILITY

Section 1.

- A. Tenure-eligible faculty of all ranks, regardless of teaching load, are eligible to vote at Faculty Assembly and in electronic balloting. Emeriti faculty are not eligible to vote at Faculty Assembly.
- B. Contingent faculty with a full-time (1.00 FTE) contract have the right to vote at Faculty Assembly and in electronic balloting during the academic year in which they hold that appointment.
- C. Contingent faculty with less than a full-time contract do not have the right to vote at Faculty Assembly or in electronic balloting.
- D. Administrative faculty and administrators who have been assigned Administrative Faculty status have the right to vote at Faculty Assembly and in electronic balloting.
- E. Administrative staff and others who are not members of the faculty, but who have been invited to attend Faculty Assembly, do not have the right to vote at Faculty Assembly or in electronic balloting.

The awarding of an honorary doctorate is an event of special significance to the university. By awarding such a degree, the university strives to accomplish two objectives. The first is to recognize worthy individuals whose lives and work advance the mission of the university. The second is to promote the reputation of the university as an institution which recognizes and encourages such excellence.

D. Policies:

1. By awarding honorary degrees, the university strives to recognize significant and sustained accomplishment, achievement, and dedication to scholarly excellence, to higher education, to religious service, to professional fields, to the creative arts, or to public service.
2. Criteria for honorary degrees are, for the most part, qualitative rather than quantitative. Nominees must not merely have accomplished a job competently but must have excelled through unusual success in or contribution to their field, through innovation or research which has caused their profession to advance, through extraordinary achievement which has enabled people to live more humanely, or through exemplary efforts to advance the mission of the university. The ethical manner in which these attainments have been reached is an important factor as well.
3. Honorary degrees may be awarded in recognition either of currently outstanding achievements or of significant accomplishments over a lengthy career of service.

E. Specific Duties:

Procedures

To implement collaborative and collegial procedures for awarding honorary degrees, the faculty and the Board of Regents have agreed upon the following:

1. Any member of the PLU community can make a nomination at any time. The nomination for an honorary degree is submitted to the president. The nomination should include, at minimum, a letter of support from the nominator including a biography of the candidate and a detailed description of their accomplishments relative to criteria noted above.
2. The president will notify the University Committee on Honorary Degrees of any nominations that are received. The committee will:
 - a. Request additional information to fully examine the merit of the case and may consult members of the community who have expertise in the appropriate area;
 - b. Consider the merit of the nomination;
 - c. Write a case statement in conformity with the policies articulated above; and
 - d. Notify the nominator that the nomination is being moved forward in the process, or, reasons as to why the committee will not recommend it for further consideration.
3. Recommended nominations will then be referred to both the Educational Policies Committee and the Board of Regents Academic Affairs Committee. A faculty representative to the Board of Regents (chair of the faculty, vice chair, or elected representative) will make the presentation to both committees. The determination of the specific degree will be made by the Educational Policies Committee.
4. The Educational Policies Committee, after consultation with the Academic Affairs Committee of the Board of Regents, will recommend the nomination to the Faculty Assembly.
5. The Faculty Assembly will make its recommendation to the president.
6. Upon approval of the president, the nomination will be presented to the Board of Regents at the next meeting.
7. Upon approval of the board, the degree candidate will be notified and the award will be presented at an appropriate time.
8. To undergird the spirit of collaboration exhibited in steps 2 and 3 of these procedures, the faculty and the Board of Regents will maintain open communication and mutual reporting through their respective officers in the event that a degree candidacy is challenged. If the faculty rejects a nominee at step 5, the chair and the vice chair of the faculty will report to and confer with the Board of Regents through its appropriate representatives, regarding the reasons for such action. If the board rejects a nominee at step 6 or 7, the officers of the board (or their designates) will report to and confer with the chair and the vice chair of the faculty regarding the reasons for such action. The chair and the vice chair will then confer with the Educational Policies Committee and those who initiated the nomination to determine if any further action is warranted.

SECTION III: ACADEMIC POLICIES, PROCEDURES, AND SERVICES

[Many academic policies are stated in the university catalog. Others are published here.]

Part I. - ACADEMIC ADVISING

The following is a reduced version of material which may be found in the university catalog, on the website of the Center for Student Success, and in related materials provided by the Center for Student Success.

Section 1. DEFINITION

Academic advising is an integral component of the educational resources of Pacific Lutheran University. The mission of academic advising is to assist students in discovering, defining, and attaining their educational goals by providing guidance, support, and resources. Both academic advisors and students have roles to play in working towards these goals: Students are responsible for making their own life, career, and educational plans, and advisors are responsible for assisting their advisees in identifying and assessing those plans and their alternatives. Because educational goals are defined in the context of life and career goals, advisors work together with the Center for Student Success and other student service programs to provide support and resources to help their advisees develop and realize their educational goals. Full-time faculty are asked by department chairs or deans to serve as academic advisors.

Section 2. NON-MAJOR ADVISING

- A. Academic advisors at PLU are committed to assisting students as they discover and define their educational, personal, and emergent life goals. The advising relationship is a collaborative partnership through which students may gain an understanding of academic disciplines and university resources as they complete their degrees. Academic advisors work to support and strengthen students' development as they progress through their academic journey.
- B. All students enrolled in degree programs have advisors whose responsibility is to guide academic progress. Until students have attained junior standing, they are required to meet with their advisor (and receive a current Registration Access Code) prior to registering for an upcoming term. In their work with individual students, advisors often work closely with and refer students to personnel in a number of student academic support offices. At the time of entry, students are assigned to an academic advisor according to their academic interests or to a professional advisor in the Center for Student Success .
- C. Transfer students who are ready to declare their major are assigned to a designated transfer advisor. Transfer students who wish to explore educational goals are assigned to the transfer student advisor in the Center for Student Success.
- D. Progress toward fulfilling elements of the General Education Program can be accessed by the student and the advisor online via the Curriculum, Advising, and Program Planning (CAPP) report available on Banner Web. In addition, advisors receive an advising file for each student they advise.
- E. Academic advisors are supported by educational planning workshops, by resources available through the website of the Center for Student Success, and through consultation with staff in the Center for Student Success.

Section 3. MAJOR ADVISING

Upon formal declaration of a major, students are assigned a faculty major advisor within the major department. Major advisors are responsible for guiding students' progress toward completion of their chosen major and the elements of the General Education Program, as well as serving as a general academic guide as students make choices and determine their educational goals. Students are welcome to see a professional academic advisor in the Center for Student Success in addition to their major advisor. Students and advisors are expected to meet regularly, though the number of meetings will vary according to individual needs. Students are encouraged to meet with their advisors at least once each semester.

Section 4. PROBATIONARY ADVISING

Students on academic probation or continued probation are required at the beginning of their probationary semester to meet with an academic advisor in the Center for Student Success to develop a plan to return to good academic standing. Students who are reinstated after academic dismissal are required to meet with an academic advisor in the Center for Student Success or a faculty advisor to develop a plan to return to good academic standing.

Section 5. THE CENTER FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

The Center for Student Success manages academic advising services, teaches career and education planning classes, and provides direct advising to a large number of first-year and sophomore students; it coordinates major advising programs and offers workshops and support for faculty and professional advisors.

Section 6. ADVISING RECORDS

A confidential advising file is created for each entering student and is sent to the assigned advisor. It will follow the student to graduation, through any change of advisor, major declaration or major change. Responsibility for the advising files lies with the currently assigned advisor. Specifically, the advisor will keep the files secure and up-to-date, and will promptly forward files when requested by the Center for Student Success.

Section 7. CHANGE OF ADVISOR

Students are encouraged to change advisors as their interests develop and change, or as they decide to declare or change majors. Advisor changes may be transacted via the declaration of major or via a change of advisor form.

Section 8. ADVISORS ON LEAVE

Faculty who go on leave have an obligation to notify the Center for Student Success regarding their leave. Temporary reassignment of advisees will occur in one of two ways. Major advisees should be reassigned by the chair within the department. Other advisees should be referred to the Center for Student Success for reassignment.

Section 9. ADVISING AND REGISTRATION

Each Fall and Spring term, several weeks in November and April, respectively, are set aside for advising and registration. Please consult the Office of the Registrar or the Center for Student Success for details.

Part II. - CONTINUING EDUCATION

Section 1. LOW ENROLLMENT COURSES

- A. University policy requires that all continuing education courses have a sufficiently large enrollment to guarantee that costs do not exceed income. A minimum enrollment number is established for each course dependent on the salary to be paid and the tuition to be charged.
- B. If enrollment falls below the minimum, the instructor's salary will be reduced by a proportionate amount. The instructor of a class with an enrollment below the minimum will have the option of canceling the class or accepting reduced salary. The instructor is expected to notify the continuing education unit offering the course the day after the initial class meeting in order to reach a mutually agreeable decision. (revised, February 28, 2005)

Part III. - ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Section 1. INTRODUCTION

- A. An essential dimension of Pacific Lutheran University's mission is to provide for the intellectual, social, physical, emotional, and spiritual development of students. Faculty, students, and administrators share responsibility for accomplishing these goals. Academic integrity is honesty concerning all aspects of academic performance. Academic integrity must be fully integrated into the campus academic environment, including norms for student life and classroom expectations. Integration is best accomplished when faculty and students understand and accept standards of academic behavior, and when the standards are fairly and uniformly enforced.
- B. The faculty's authority over the classroom and grades reinforces the principles of academic integrity and the consequences of academic misconduct. Expectations and policies regarding academic dishonesty should be clear within and across academic units, and the classroom should be conducted in a manner to support those policies. Instructors need to know the following enforcement system and are obligated to use it when academic dishonesty occurs. Enforcement supports honest students and promotes our commitment to academic integrity. Enforcement also allows for the ability to better monitor the quantity and nature of academic dishonesty incidents and to track students who repeatedly commit acts of academic dishonesty so that such behavior by students is discouraged but dealt with accordingly.
- C. PLU's expectation is that students will not cheat or plagiarize, and that they will not condone these behaviors or assist others who cheat or plagiarize. Academic misconduct not only jeopardizes the career of the individual student involved, but also undermines the scholastic achievements of all PLU students and attacks the mission of this institution. Students are inherently responsible to do their own work, thereby insuring the integrity of their academic records.
- D. Administrators shall disseminate this policy through publications and presentations to all students while the Academic Performance & Integrity Committee (APIC) shall also publicize this policy to all faculty. Administrators must promote uniform interpretation and enforcement of this policy, and APIC shall regularly report summarized data to the campus community concerning instances and outcomes of academic misconduct. APIC will review this policy every three years.

Section 2. WHAT IS ACADEMIC DISHONESTY?

- A. PLU defines Academic Dishonesty as violating procedures prescribed to protect the integrity of an assignment, test, or other evaluation. The most common forms of academic dishonesty are cheating and plagiarism.
- B. Cheating includes, but is not limited to:
 - 1. Submitting material that is not yours as part of your course performance, such as submitting a downloaded paper off of the Internet; or
 - 2. Using information or devices not allowed by the instructor (such as formulas or a computer program or data); or unauthorized materials (such as a copy of an examination before it is given);

or

3. Fabricating information, such as data for a lab report; or
 4. Collaborating with others on assignments without the instructor's consent; or
 5. Cooperating with or helping another student to cheat; or
 6. Other forms of dishonest behavior, such as having another person take an exam for you, altering exam answers and requesting the exam be re-graded, or communicating with anyone other than a proctor or instructor during an exam.
- C. Plagiarism occurs when one omits, misrepresents, or inaccurately documents how the work of others appears in and influences one's own work. Plagiarism can involve both products (such as words, formulas, or images) and ideas (such as ideas, intellectual approaches, or concepts), and can result from an intent to deceive or from a lack of due attention to the responsibilities of accurate documentation.
- D. In short, plagiarism is the act of using any source (published, unpublished, or one's own) that appears in or directly influences one's own work without properly identifying it, such as (but not limited to):
1. Directly quoting the words of others without attribution and without using quotation marks or other accepted formats to identify them; or
 2. Using any course work previously produced by the same student without prior approval from the current instructor; or
 3. Using altered wording, materials, or ideas of others without properly identifying their source; or
 4. Representing an idea or strategy that is significant in one's own work as one's own when it comes from someone else.
- E. Because plagiarism involves a misrepresentation of principles and processes fundamental to the integrity of the university, matters of plagiarism are taken very seriously by both administration and faculty. If students are unsure about something that they want to do or the proper use of materials, it is each student's responsibility to ask the instructor for clarification.

Section 3. REPORTING SUSPECTED ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

Generally, instructors are strongly encouraged to report any suspected violations of the university's academic integrity policy (AIP) through formal channels by submitting an electronic Academic Dishonesty Report Form (ADRF) with appropriate documentation (<https://www.plu.edu/srr/>). When an instructor believes a student has violated the university's AIP, they may, at their discretion, contact the student to inform them of the issue.

When an ADRF is submitted, it will be sent to the Student Rights and Responsibilities Office (SRRO) for processing. The SRRO will inform the student that an ADRF has been filed and will provide the student with a copy of the AIP along with information on the review process.

Section 4. RESOLVING AN ACADEMIC DISHONESTY INCIDENT

- A. When an instructor believes a student has violated the university's AIP, they may resolve the incident in accordance with one of the following options. Instructors are encouraged to consult with any member of the APIC regarding these procedures.
1. The instructor may meet informally with the student to resolve the matter.

2. The instructor may ask to meet with the student in the presence of witnesses to resolve the matter. In this case, the student will be informed in writing of the purpose of the meeting, and of their right to have a witness present.
 - a. If an instructor is unable to meet with a student, as at the end of Spring Term or a term before a student studies abroad, the instructor will document the suspected violation and send it to the student, via certified mail or email, together with a letter stating the penalty to be imposed.
3. The instructor may submit an electronic ADRF with appropriate documentation and an indication of the severity of the violation.
 - a. The electronic ADRF has two checkbox options:
 - i. Minor Academic Dishonesty:
This option indicates that the suspected violation was non-egregious, and that the student should receive additional education in order to avoid future violations or suspected violations. Instructors are encouraged to discuss the situation and the reasons for filing the report with the student.
 - ii. Major Academic Dishonesty:
This option indicates that the suspected violation was egregious, and that the student should receive a hearing from an Academic Dishonesty Hearing Panel (ADHP). Instructors are encouraged to discuss the situation and the reasons for filing the report with the student.
 - b. When an ADRF has been filed, it will generate one of the following outcomes.
 - i. Reports of Minor Academic Dishonesty
 1. If a report of minor academic dishonesty is the first report that has been filed against a student, the SRRO will inform the student that an ADRF has been filed and that the student must attend a mandatory meeting with the Associate Director for Student Rights and Responsibility or designated university official, during which the student will receive additional education about academic integrity in an environment removed from perceived bias in order to avoid future violations or suspected violations.
 - a. In this meeting, no determination of responsibility will be made, but the student will be advised: 1) that the ADRF will remain on file; 2) that it will be used to make determinations of responsibility if subsequent reports are submitted involving the student; 3) of the possible sanctions that could be imposed if subsequent reports are submitted involving the student; and 4) that a single ADRF with a minor indicator will not be considered a student conduct record and will be automatically expunged from the student's education record upon graduation. The student will also be directed to Academic Assistance, to their instructor, and to other resources that may help the student understand how to avoid future violations or suspected violations.
 - b. The instructor will be informed of the content of the mandatory meeting.
 2. If a report of minor academic dishonesty is not the first report that has been filed against a student, it will be treated as a major report of academic dishonesty.
 - ii. Reports of Major Academic Dishonesty
 1. The SRRO will inform the student that an ADRF has been filed and initiate a hearing as outlined below in "Formal Hearing Process."
4. The instructor has the full authority to impose penalties with respect to their class. The minimum penalty grade for dishonesty in coursework that constitutes 30% or more of a course grade shall be an "E" for the course, unless the student is enrolled "pass/fail" in the class, and then the course grade will be an "F". Dishonesty in other required course work shall result in a minimum penalty grade of zero for that work.

Section 5. OCCASIONS WHEN AN ACADEMIC DISHONESTY HEARING PANEL MUST BE CALLED

- A. When academic dishonesty includes flagrant behavior. Examples include, but are not limited to, having a substitute take an exam, fabricating experimental data, or buying a written term paper from someone.
- B. When more than one ADRF is filed for the same student at any time during that student's PLU career.

Section 6. STUDENT REQUEST FOR FORMAL HEARING

Students who disagree with a penalty imposed or the filing of an ADRF by an instructor may request a formal hearing by an ADHP. Such a request must occur within five business days of notification of the grade in question or the notification of suspected academic dishonesty. When filing such a request, the student must contact the APIC chair and provide a rationale for why they are challenging the instructor's decision. The APIC chair will then notify the instructor and coordinate a date and time for the formal hearing. The student and instructor will be given at least 48-hours' notice of the date, time, and location of the formal hearing.

Section 7. ADHP - COMPOSITION AND JURISDICTION

- A. An ADHP shall include two faculty and one student member assisted by the Student Conduct Coordinator or designee as a non-voting, advisory member. During the academic year, faculty members will be appointed by the APIC chair from the faculty membership of APIC; the student member will be appointed by the APIC chair, in conjunction with the Dean of Students, from a pool of students appointed by ASPLU and the Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities, all serving renewable one-year terms). Every effort shall be made to conduct ADHPs during the academic year whenever possible. In cases where conducting an ADHP during the summer months cannot be avoided, the Student Conduct Coordinator or designee will appoint available trained students to serve on ADHPs. The provost will also recruit, subsequently assign, and financially compensate available faculty from the membership of the previous academic year's APIC to serve on ADHPs in these cases. If members of the previous academic year's APIC cannot be recruited, the provost may ask faculty with 12-month contracts to fill these faculty positions on ADHPs. A faculty chair for each ADHP shall be elected from its membership. Training for potential ADHP members will be provided as needed by the Student Conduct Coordinator.
- B. ADHPs are authorized to review and make decisions regarding allegations of misconduct brought by instructors, appeals from a student whose instructor has imposed penalties on them, student contests of the filing of an ADRF by a professor, and/or multiple alleged infractions of the policy, as identified by the Student Conduct Coordinator.

Section 8. FORMAL HEARING PROCESS

- A. The purpose of an ADHP is to determine whether a student is responsible for academic dishonesty as described in the university's Academic Integrity policy. ADHP hearings are structured educational discussions, which focus on the student's alleged misconduct within the university community.
- B. ADHP hearings will be convened in a timely fashion relative to the request, either at the student's request or due to the filing of an Academic Dishonesty Report Form by an instructor who requires a panel hearing. Instructors may attend ADHP hearings as a witness either if requested by the panel or at their own request. ADHPs are conducted as review meetings as described in the Student Conduct Procedures (Section VII – Review Procedures). Throughout the review process, the following rights will be maintained and respected. For the student, these include:
 - 1. The right to receive a written notice of the date, time, and place of the ADHP hearing and a copy of the relevant Academic Dishonesty Report Form, at least 48 hours in advance of the ADHP;
 - 2. The right to have an individual ADHP hearing if more than one student is charged with misconduct;
 - 3. The right to request disqualification of any ADHP member they believe to be biased. Final determination of disqualification is made by the APIC chair;
 - 4. The right to have witnesses with direct knowledge of the incident in question speak on their behalf (character witnesses are not permitted);
 - 5. The right to have a support person who is a non-familial student, staff member, or faculty member of the university community (excepting a lawyer) assist them in the proceedings. A support person who accompanies a student is present for emotional support only and may not speak on the student's behalf;
 - 6. The right to fair and impartial decision-makers;
 - 7. The right to a written copy of the ADHP's decision;
 - 8. The right to a self-initiated appeal.
- C. For the instructor alleging misconduct, these include:
 - 1. The right to have a support person, as described above.
 - 2. The right to be informed of the ADHP's decision (excluding recommended sanctions that do not directly affect the instructor) at the same time the student is notified of the decision. In cases in which the instructor disagrees with the ADHP's decision, the instructor may provide the Office of the Provost with a document asserting their dissent within three business days.
- D. The chair of an ADHP oversees the review meeting while the Student Conduct Coordinator or designee responds to questions about an ADHP's procedures, and may decide procedural matters not already established by an ADHP, with or without the advice of the other members. Otherwise, a majority vote of the three voting members will decide a procedural question. The chair is the spokesperson for an ADHP and is responsible for all communication on behalf of an ADHP.

Section 9. OUTLINE OF PROCEEDINGS

- A. An ADHP will review the written materials prior to the meeting and determine appropriate questions. If a student wishes to submit additional written materials, these should be provided to the Student Conduct Coordinator in advance of the hearing, if at all possible. Students are strongly encouraged to provide such materials to better support their argument and to reduce the likelihood of an extended decision-making process.
- B. An ADHP may hear from the instructor, student, and witnesses, asking questions as appropriate.

Questions must be pertinent to the report and the purpose of the meeting. Witnesses may be brought forward by both the instructor and the student. An ADHP may limit witness testimony to the facts of the situation, and excuse a witness if the information shared seems unproductive, redundant, or irrelevant. An ADHP may invite as witnesses individuals who were included in the original written record of the incident.

- C. The university expects that community members possess the skill and resources to discuss alleged academic misconduct; hence, legal counsel is not permitted at ADHP meetings.
- D. An audio record of the proceedings will be made. An ADHP's file of the hearing and the recording shall be retained by the provost until the appeal period has expired. After the appeal period has ended, the records will be kept in accordance with the Student Conduct Procedures (Section X).

Section 10. PENALTIES

- A. The minimum penalty grade for dishonesty in coursework that constitutes 30% or more of a course grade shall be an "E" for the course, unless the student is enrolled "pass/fail" in the class, and then the course grade will be an "F". Dishonesty in other required course work shall result in a minimum penalty grade of zero for that work.
- B. Academic Dishonesty Hearing Panels may render a finding of either "responsible," "not responsible," or "inconclusive." The ADHP shall use majority vote to reach decisions. ADHP decisions of "not responsible" or "inconclusive" should not be used as a record of previous academic misconduct.
- C. An ADHP is empowered, at its discretion, to take the following actions in accordance with its findings:
 - 1. Recommend a change of grade to the instructor; and/or
 - 2. Impose sanctions as listed in Section IX of the Student Conduct Procedures (except suspension, expulsion, or grade changes); and/or
 - 3. Recommend suspension or expulsion of a student to the provost. Suspension and expulsion may be considered in severe cases and in cases where there is a previous history of academic dishonesty; grievous offenses such as academic dishonesty in capstones or culminating experiences may result in expulsion. Penalties of suspension and expulsion must be endorsed by the provost. The provost will convey their recommendation and reasons that support their position to the vice president for student life and dean of students and confer with the vice president for student life and dean of students regarding the import of the incident. Sanctions of suspension or expulsion are imposed by the vice president for student life and dean of students. No specific mention of Academic Dishonesty will appear on the student's transcript; however, suspensions and expulsions will be recorded as detailed in Section IX in the Student Conduct Procedures.
- D. An ADHP may also recommend that the instructor reduce a penalty that the ADHP believes was arbitrary or too severe. If an ADHP finds that academic dishonesty did not occur, it will recommend to the instructor that the penalty imposed be rescinded and for the instructor to grade the course work on its academic merit.
- E. When the penalty grade is an "E" or an "F" for the course, the instructor will notify the registrar that the student may not withdraw from the class. The registrar will not record a final grade for the course until the date for the student to request a formal hearing has passed. Students requesting a formal hearing shall be permitted to attend and fully participate in the course until the process is complete.

F. Generally, ADHP decisions will be made within three business days of the formal hearing and will be either available for pick-up by the student at Campus Safety or personally delivered to the student or sent by certified mail to the student's most recent local address, permanent address, or via email, whichever is most appropriate as decided by the chair of the ADHP. The decision will include an outline of the appeal process. In the event that additional time for review, further investigation, and/or deliberation is required, the instructor(s) and student(s) involved will be notified in writing or via email of the revised timeline.

Section 11. STUDENT APPEAL PROCESS

All imposed sanctions may be appealed on the grounds of lack of a fair review or severity of sanction within five working days of being notified of the sanction. Students who wish to appeal a sanction should submit a written request for appeal to the chair of APIC. The letter must include: the appeal date; a detailed explanation of the grounds for the appeal; any information that was not available at the time of the formal hearing; and the signature of the student filing the appeal. Electronic submissions of appeals will be accepted. In cases that do not involve suspension or expulsion, the appeal is submitted by the chair of APIC to the provost for consideration of the appeal of the ADHP's decision. In cases involving suspension or expulsion, the appeal will be forwarded to the vice president for student life and dean of students for action by the president. Students may not appeal a sanction more than once.

Section 12. RETALIATION

The university expressly prohibits retaliation against any person who has reported academic misconduct to a member of the university community or who has participated in any way in the conduct of a case of academic misconduct or in the imposition of a sanction for academic misconduct. Any person who violates this policy may be subject to disciplinary action, including suspension or expulsion from the university.

Section 13. MAINTENANCE OF RECORDS

Academic integrity records will be maintained in accordance with the university's Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) policy and the Student Conduct Procedures (Section X). The records will be housed with the Student Conduct Coordinator and will be kept according to Section X of the PLU Student Conduct Procedures. A single ADRF with a minor indicator will not be considered a student conduct record and will be automatically expunged from the student's education record upon graduation. If a student leaves PLU before graduation, the student may petition to have a single ADRF expunged (<https://www.plu.edu/student-rights-and-responsibilities-procedures/conduct-records/>).

Part IV. - PROVOST

The provost and senior vice president for academic affairs is the chief academic officer of the university. The provost serves on the university's leadership team and works with the president, the vice presidents, the deans of the academic programs, and various university councils and committees to carry out the mission of the university. The provost represents the university to external constituencies in a manner determined by the president. The provost also represents the academic division to the President's Council and the Board of Regents. The provost is responsible for all operations of the university related to academic leadership, curriculum, personnel management for the academic division, and budget planning and fiscal management for the academic division. The provost supports and works in partnership with the faculty governance system. All academic areas report to the provost. The provost reports to the president. A complete description can be found on the websites for the Office of the Provost and Human Resources.

Part V. - DEPARTMENTAL, DIVISIONAL, AND SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

Section 1. DEPARTMENTS AND SCHOOLS: NOMINATION AND TERMS OF OFFICE FOR ADMINISTRATORS

Each department and school shall (1) develop election procedures for nomination of candidates for administrative positions and (2) recommend terms of office for those positions. The nomination(s) shall be forwarded to the president of the university by January 15 of the last year in the term of office.

Section 2. DEPARTMENTS, SCHOOLS, AND DIVISIONS: EVALUATION OF ADMINISTRATORS

- A. The Provost's Academic Council in consultation with the Rank and Tenure Committee and Faculty Affairs Committee shall develop and bring to the Faculty Assembly for approval the instruments and procedures to be used in the evaluation process.
- B. It shall be the responsibility of all faculty with voting rights to evaluate department chairs, associate deans, deans, and directors annually in administrator feedback forms. The administrator feedback forms are to be completed and the results shared with the administrator and their immediate administrative superior by June 15. The provost will also share the results of the administrator feedback forms with the university president by June 15.
- C. Department chairs, associate deans, and directors are reviewed annually by their school or divisional dean, and the reviews will incorporate the results of the administrator feedback forms. Deans are reviewed annually by the provost and the reviews will incorporate the results. By September 1, a draft of the review is to be shared with the administrator being reviewed. By September 15, the administrator being reviewed may offer their response and/or meet with their immediate administrative superior. By September 30, the final review is due in the Office of the Provost.

Section 3. JOB DESCRIPTION FOR DIVISIONAL AND SCHOOL DEANS

- A. Provide leadership for and supervise the academic programs of the division/school.
- B. Provide reports essential for effective administration of the division/school and its academic programs.
- C. Establish and recommend the budget of the division/school.
- D. Recommend and supervise department, program, and school budgets.
- E. Make recommendations for faculty appointments, promotions, salaries, sabbatical and special leaves, and oversee or write required faculty evaluations.
- F. Make recommendations for undergraduate and graduate student awards.
- G. Encourage and facilitate the professional growth and teaching competency of the faculty.
- H. Support academic leadership and collaboration among department, program, and school administrators.

- I. Support the development and competency of the staff of the departments, division, and school.
- J. Advance the financial support base of the programs and facilities of the division/school.
- K. Work cooperatively with the other deans to foster the liberal arts and their integration with major and professional degree curricula.

Section 4. DEPARTMENTAL CHAIRS AND PROGRAM DIRECTORS

- A. Departmental Chairs. Departmental chairs have planning, management, and leadership responsibilities that include the following: departmental governance, instructional supervision, faculty affairs, student affairs, external communication, fiscal management, office management, and departmental development. While chairs are recognized as having duties spread across 12 months, the workload is generally equivalent to 10 months. Recommended by their colleagues but appointed by the president and the Board of Regents, chairs serve the faculty and the institution, a dual responsibility. They report, administratively, to their respective deans. Departments, if they wish, and in consultation with their deans and the provost, may amplify this job description so that it meets specific departmental conditions.
- B. The annual contractual term of service for departmental chairs is the 10-month period September 1 – June 30. Compensation for the chair during this 10-month period shall consist of two parts: a) a course load release during the academic year (September 1 – May 31) at a level to be determined in consultation with the provost, and b) in addition to their regular faculty contract, a 10-month service agreement carrying with it a stipend to be paid over those 10 months. In some cases, and as a consequence of the release time provided to the chair, departments may need additional funds to maintain their teaching schedules. Requests for such funds to meet the needs caused by the chair release time should be submitted annually to the provost by February 15 for the following academic year.
- C. Interdisciplinary Program directors and chairs have duties that are unique to each program and the scope of duties varies considerably among the programs. For selected programs, the position of director or chair carries with it a course release during the academic year at a level to be determined in consultation with the provost. For selected programs additional compensation may be considered as well.

Section 1. FACULTY APPROVAL OF CURRICULUM AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

- A. All curricula and degree requirements shall be approved by the faculty [Faculty Constitution, Article III, Section 2.B.6].
 - 1. “Curricula” includes all courses, workshops, and continuing education offered for credit at Pacific Lutheran University.
 - 2. “Degree requirements” includes all undergraduate and graduate requirements of a department, division, school or college for successful completion of its program(s). (Examples of such requirements include: prerequisites; the number of courses or credit hours required for a major or minor; area examinations, research, or thesis; recitals, exhibitions, or contests; foreign language requirements; courses to be taken in other departments; and internships.)
 - 3. All faculty legislation substantively affecting core curriculum elements or degree requirement shall carry with it an effective date.
- B. All curricular changes, except special topics courses that do not meet a core curriculum element, shall be placed on the EPC 30-Day Notice of Curriculum Changes and receive faculty approval before being listed in the university catalog by the Office of the Registrar, or on the PLU website. Specific topics for special courses are not listed in the university catalog.
 - 1. EPC categorizes proposed curricular changes into three different types of proposals: Type 1 (non-substantive programmatic changes), Type 2 (substantive programmatic changes), and Type 3 (establishing or eliminating new programs, majors, minors, or concentrations). An overview of the process for each type of proposal is detailed in Section 2. of this manual. Forms and templates for EPC proposals can be found in the EPC section of the Provost Sakai Folder (<https://sakai.plu.edu/portal>). Special topics courses that seek to carry a core curriculum designation must be approved through the usual process, with an EPC Proposal Form, before being offered.
 - 2. Special topics courses may be activated by memo to the registrar, with the exception of those courses that seek to carry a core curriculum designation, which must be approved through the usual process (i.e., with the appropriate EPC Proposal Form) before being offered. Before inclusion in the class schedule, the course title, number, course description, and credit hours for a specific special topics course must be provided in a memo to the registrar.

3. The same specific topic may only be offered twice as a special topics course within four years without faculty approval.

Section 2. FLOWCHART OF USUAL PROCEDURE FOR CURRICULUM REVISION

Section 3. PROCEDURES GOVERNING REVISION OF CURRICULUM AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

- A. Each proposed change in curriculum and in degree requirements shall be discussed and approved by the department or school of origin. The head of the department, school or college shall sign the proposal—indicating whether two-thirds of the faculty has approved the proposal or not—and submit it, where appropriate, to the divisional school and/or dean. Approval by the school and/or college dean shall be given in accordance with established procedures of the respective school or college. The school or college dean shall sign the proposal as evidence of such approval. The department, school, or college originating the proposal shall forward one copy with the required signatures to the provost for signature, along with an electronic copy of the proposal.

- B. Approval by the school or college dean shall be given in accordance with established procedures of the respective school or college. The school or college dean shall sign the proposal as evidence of such approval. The department, school, or college originating the proposal shall forward one copy with the required signatures to the provost for signature, along with an electronic copy of the proposal.
- C. If a proposal affects staffing or enrollments outside of the unit that is originating the proposal, EPC strongly recommends seeking approval for the proposal by the affected unit(s), as indicated by the signature of the representative dean or chair, prior to submission. If a proposal comes to EPC without such an endorsement, EPC will seek input from the affected unit(s) directly.
- D. The provost shall relay the proposal with appropriate comment to EPC for its review. Proposals for new degrees, new majors, new minors, concentrations, and programs that require action by the Board of Regents require submission of a cost analysis. In addition, EPC shall present such proposals to the faculty, which will decide whether to recommend them to the Board of Regents.
- E. Descriptions of proposed curricular changes, course numbers, titles, credit hours, and synopses of proposed degree requirement changes shall be published by EPC in the 30-day Notice of Curriculum Changes and sent via email to all faculty members. Complete copies of proposals are available online in the EPC section of the Provost Sakai folder.
- F. Faculty members must submit objections to proposals in writing to the Chair of EPC within 30 days from the date listed on the 30-day Notice of Curriculum Changes distributed by EPC. Objections received within this 30-day period will suspend approval, pending resolution of the objections. In the event a dispute cannot be resolved, EPC will make its recommendation to the faculty for action at the next regular faculty meeting.
- G. Every proposal that requires action by the Board of Regents (e.g. new degrees, majors, minors, concentrations, or programs) shall follow the procedure described above. EPC will present such proposals to the faculty, which will decide whether or not to recommend them to the Board of Regents.

Section 4. FORMAT FOR PREPARING PROPOSALS

- A. Proposals require a completed EPC Proposal Form. Forms and templates for proposals can be found in the EPC section of the website for the Office of the Provost, Documents & Forms (<https://www.plu.edu/provost/documents/file-group/epc-information/>). Type 3 proposals further require a submission of a New Program Notification form and a completed Institutional Impact Evaluation form. [Procure up-to-date form at <https://www.plu.edu/provost/documents/>]
 - 1. All proposal forms must be submitted to the Office of the Provost.
 - 2. All proposals must include both a proposal summary and a statement of rationale, as well as information, where appropriate, about changes to course numbers, title, credit hours, and catalog description.
 - 3. Proposals should be formulated carefully, with any inherent problems carefully addressed. This is particularly important in the case of major curricular revisions (Type 2 and Type 3). Proposal rationales should discuss the philosophic, strategic, demographic, and economic aspects of the proposed changes, and take into account comparable practices at other peer institutions and those suggested by national, regional, and state certifying bodies. Proposals must also address, using verifiable data and sound argumentation, the direct and indirect consequences and costs of the changes on staffing and enrollment in departments, divisions, schools, colleges, and the university.

4. Non-substantive changes do not typically require the same level of detail as Type 2 or Type 3 proposals. Type 1 proposals include changes in course number, title, or editorial changes to the catalog description. EPC may, at its discretion, determine whether a proposed change is substantive or non-substantive. If a determination is made that the proposal is indeed a substantive change, it may be sent back to the originating unit for additional detail. Minor corrections of language, grammar, or typographical errors may be requested directly by memo to the registrar and do not require EPC approval.
5. Activation of special topics courses that are not intended to meet a core curriculum element do not require EPC action. (However, the course number, title, credit value, and catalog description of such courses must still be filed with the Office of the Registrar before a special topics course is included in the class schedule.) Special topics courses that are intended to meet a core curriculum element are considered substantive changes (Type 2) and require approval by the Core Curriculum Committee.

Section 5. CHECKLIST FOR DEVELOPING PROPOSALS

Section 6. POLICIES FOR OPEN TOPIC COURSES

- A. COURSES DESIGNED FOR INDIVIDUAL STUDENTS: Academic units may add any of the following courses designed for individual students to the curriculum without approval by EPC.

Note: When an instructor agrees to offer a course available in the regular curriculum to a student on an individual basis, the regular course number, title, and credits must be used. The common title designation on term-based records will be listed as IS for independently studied.

Course Number	Course Type	Credit Hours	Purpose	Instructional Mode	Term-based Title
291	Directed Study	1-4 cr; may be repeated for credit	Individual, introductory undergraduate study not available in the regular curriculum	Tutorial or close supervision of individual students	DS: followed by the specific title designated by the student
491	Independent Study		Individual, advanced undergraduate study not available in the regular curriculum	Advanced tutorial or guidance for individual students	IS: followed by the specific title designated by the student
591	Independent Study		Individual, graduate level study not available in the regular curriculum	Graduate level tutorial or guidance for individual students
598	Non-thesis Research Project		Graduate level, non-thesis research opportunities		Project: followed by the specific title designated by the student
598	Thesis		Graduate level, demonstration of ability to do independent research	Advising and evaluating research and writing for individual students	Thesis: followed by the specific title designated by the student

B. INTERNSHIPS: Academic units may add any of the following internship courses to the curriculum without approval by EPC. Academic units that offer more than one internship should use the numbering designation below and distinguish different internships by means of the specific Term-based Title.

Course Number	Course Type	Credit Hours	Purpose	Instructional Mode	Term-based Title
495	Internship	1-12 cr; may be repeated for credit	Permit undergraduate students to relate theory and practice in a work situation	Individual supervision of work activity. The student, work supervisor, and instructor obligations as well as course content, are stipulated in writing before the start of the internship	Intern: followed by the specific title designated by the student
595	Internship		Permit graduate students to relate theory and practice in a work situation

C. COURSES THAT FULFILL THE SENIOR SEMINAR/PROJECT GENERAL EDUCATION ELEMENT

Course Number	Course Type	Credit Hours	Purpose	Instructional Mode	Term-based Title
499	Senior Seminar / Project	2-4 hours, as designated by the academic unit of the student's major	A substantial project, paper, practicum, or internship that culminates and advances the program of an academic major.	The end product must be presented to an open audience and critically evaluated by faculty in the student's field	Capstone: followed by the specific title designated by the academic unit.
499	Capstone	1-4cr; may be repeated for credit	To enable senior students in academic unit to share their work and receive group criticism	Primarily presentation and critique of student papers and/or projects. The instructor customarily directs discussion, advises, and/or evaluates projects, but may also present additional material.	Capstone: may be followed by the specific title designated by the academic unit.

D. SPECIAL TOPICS COURSES: Academic units may activate any of the special topic courses listed below to the curriculum by memo to the registrar and EPC. After a special topic course has been activated, the academic unit may offer any specific topic without EPC approval. However, academic units must still notify the Office of the Registrar of the specific title, credit, and course description by memo as part of the class schedule preparation process. The same specific topic cannot be offered more often than twice within four years. If an academic unit wishes to offer the special topic more regularly, it must be approved as a regular course through the usual course approval process. A special topic course may not carry a core curriculum element, or appear in the university catalog, unless approved through the usual course approval process and the use of the EPC Proposal form.

Course Number	Course Type	Credit Hours	Purpose	Instructional Mode	Term-based Title
287, 288, 289	Special Topics	1-4cr; may be repeated for credit	New, one-time, and developing undergraduate courses not yet available in the regular curriculum	Classroom instruction and interaction.	ST: followed by the specific title designated by the academic unit.
387, 388, 389
487, 488, 489
587, 588, 589			New, one-time, and developing graduate level courses not yet available in the regular curriculum

Section 7. PUBLICATION DATES

- A. To permit timely publication of course changes in class schedules, EPC advises faculty to submit all proposals as early as possible. Submission of proposals types by the following dates is strongly encouraged:
- Type 3 proposals – October 1. Submission by this deadline will enable these proposals to be considered for inclusion in the class schedules for the following summer session and fall semester. This will help ensure adequate time for consideration by both the Faculty Assembly and the Board of Regents.
- Type 2 proposals – December 1. Submission by this deadline will enable these proposals to be considered for inclusion in the class schedules for the following summer session and fall semester. EPC strongly encourages earlier submission of these kinds of substantive changes, especially if there is a Core Curriculum element request.

Type 1 proposals, being non-substantive, are generally considered on a rolling basis. For inclusion in the J-term and spring class schedules, submission at the beginning of that academic year is advised. For inclusion in the summer session and fall semester class schedules (and the catalog for the next academic year), submission by March 1 is advised.

Section 8. CATALOGS AND CLASS SCHEDULES

All catalogs and class schedules shall include only those courses that have been formally approved by EPC. Course numbers, titles, descriptions, credit hours, and status shall be shown only in their EPC-approved form. (Course titles may be appropriately abbreviated, where necessary.)

Only EPC shall authorize material changes in the university's curricula and course offerings.

Courses which have not been taught (even though they may have been offered) during the previous four-year period shall be automatically deleted from the list of EPC-approved courses and, therefore, from all catalogs and class schedules. Requests for exceptions to this policy shall be submitted to EPC. Reactivation of formerly offered courses may be requested by way of a memo to the chair of EPC.

Previously used course numbers and course information are eliminated from Banner and can be reused once a course has not been offered in the catalog for more than twenty years.

Part VII. - OTHER POLICIES

Section 1. GRADUATE THESES, RESEARCH PROJECTS, OR PAPERS

A. Compensation For Supervision

1. Compensating faculty for graduate thesis, research project, or paper supervision is essential for the purpose of ensuring equitable forms of remuneration, endorsing a high level of quality supervision, and acknowledging significant commitments of faculty time and energy required to fulfill this responsibility.
2. The plan provides for two forms of compensation for thesis, research project, or paper supervision: (a) teaching load credit, or (b) financial payment.
 - a. At the discretion of the respective chair and/or dean, load credit may be granted to faculty serving as thesis, research project, or paper supervisors. Load credit is calculated as part of a faculty member's teaching obligation and is implemented concurrently at the time of supervision.
 - b. Payment for each completed thesis, research project, or paper will be authorized upon submission and acceptance by the associate provost for graduate programs and continuing education, and will be determined by the respective chair and/or dean, and the provost. With the recommendation of the respective chair, dean, and associate provost for graduate programs and continuing education, partial payment may occur for incomplete theses, research projects, or papers that a student paid tuition for and the faculty member spent significant time advising.

Section 2. HONOR SOCIETIES

Honor societies are organizations that serve to recognize the academic achievements of students who are among the highest in their class in scholarship. Honor societies may also have other requirements for distinction such as in leadership, service, academic discipline, or co-curricular activity in the university.

Honor societies at Pacific Lutheran University base their membership criteria in whole or in part on students' academic achievement. An honor society is defined as a student organization with membership criteria containing a standard for high achievement in scholarship. All honor societies at Pacific Lutheran University serve to enhance the mission of the university.

The faculty determines honors bestowed by the university (Faculty Bylaws, Article III, Section 2.A) and therefore all honor societies are reviewed by the faculty to assure both that the academic standards are appropriate to PLU and that the focus of the honor society is an appropriate fit with the PLU mission.

A recommendation for instituting a new honor society is to be approved by the faculty through the following procedure:

- A. A proposal for a new honor society which must include a rationale for the addition of the honor society to the PLU community is discussed and approved by the department, school or college of origin and approved by the corresponding dean as appropriate.

- B. The proposal is then submitted to the provost and the Educational Policies Committee for review.
- C. The Educational Policies Committee reviews the proposal and publishes it online for a 30-day review period, during which objections may be submitted in writing.
 - 1. If no objections are received, the proposal will be automatically approved.
 - 2. If objections, mediation and hearings may be conducted as necessary. If the dispute cannot be resolved, then the committee will make its recommendation to the Faculty Assembly at the next regular meeting.

Section 3. INSTRUCTIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES AND COURSE PROCEDURES

A. Course Load

Normally, the minimum full teaching load of a faculty member is 24 equated semester hours per school year. Reductions for administrative duties are made in the case of departmental chairs, interdisciplinary program chairs/directors, and school and college deans. The minimum of 24 semester hours per academic year should not be regarded as a faculty member's total responsibility to the university. Rather it is a general guide in assigning classes. Advising, committee assignments, and other activities are also included in the scope of a faculty member's basic responsibility.

B. Office Hours

- 1. One of the hallmarks of a PLU education is faculty-student interaction. Faculty members are available to students in a variety of ways: faculty maintain fixed in-person office hours, meet with students outside of these fixed hours, and interact with students via email and other electronic communication. Successful faculty are available to students, but also set limits in order to maintain a balance in their own work responsibilities.
- 2. Faculty are expected to spend at least five hours per week interacting with students outside of class. At least three of these hours should be fixed in-person office hours scheduled to accommodate a wide range of student schedules. The remaining hours may be flexible and include additional in-person office hours, meetings with students outside of these fixed hours, and email and other forms of electronic communication. Fixed in-person office hours should be posted and arrangements for scheduling appointments should be communicated to students at the start of a term. As far as possible, fixed in-person office hours should not be held during chapel period.

C. Examinations

- 1. Faculty members are expected to give tests or examinations or make assignments which will evaluate students' comprehension at frequent intervals so that both faculty and students will have a clear conception of progress in a course. The university wishes to avoid any accusation at the end of a semester that an instructor provided no evaluation information that could serve as advance warning that a student was doing inferior work.
- 2. According to faculty legislation, no major examination weighing more than 10% of a final grade may be scheduled in the week before final examinations.
- 3. Final examinations in all courses are scheduled by the registrar, and all faculty members must adhere to the regular examination schedule. Any deviation from the final examination schedule must be approved by the appropriate departmental chairs and school or college deans.
- 4. The faculty's policy regarding final examinations states:
 - a. A two-hour block of time will be scheduled Monday through Thursday in the last week of the regular semester for each course. The time is to be used for final examinations or other learning experiences related to the course completed. Friday of the final exam week is available for make-up examinations, follow-up of examinations already given, or student conferences.

b. Students in quarter or partial-semester courses may be evaluated prior to final examinations.

5. Faculty members are required to take all necessary precautions to prevent the circulation of any examination material which is to be used at a later time.
6. All instructors are expected to keep their final examination papers at least thirty days.
7. The faculty member in charge of an examination is asked to secure the aid of other faculty members if additional proctors are needed for administering a test.
8. See references in the general catalog and the Educational Policies Committee manual for information about credit by challenge examinations in the various departments where they are given, about Advanced Placement examinations through the College Board, and about CLEP examinations.

D. Major Examination Immediately Preceding Finals

No major examination (i.e., one weighing more than ten percent of the total class grade) shall be scheduled during the week prior to final examination week. One-credit-hour courses and laboratory sections are exempt from this policy.

E. Reporting Concerns about Students

Faculty members are strongly urged to identify students experiencing difficulty in the courses they instruct, especially in the first six weeks of a fall or spring semester. Poor performance on assignments, lack of participation, irregular attendance, or other criteria may contribute to academic progress concerns depending on the nature of a given course. Faculty members shall be provided a mechanism by which they can communicate concerns about students to initiate an appropriate response from relevant campus partners.

F. Grading and Grade Books

1. Formal grade reports are recorded on student transcripts at the end of each term in the academic year: fall semester, January Term, spring semester, and summer sessions, according to a student's registration.
2. Specific information about the grading system, changing of grades, and student withdrawal from classes is in the general catalog.
3. Detailed instructions for completing grade sheets are issued by the Office of the Registrar before the end of each term. Instructors must comply with deadlines since many other areas of the university are affected by delays that result from grade reports that are either incomplete or late.

G. Teaching and Course Feedback Forms

1. All persons teaching courses in conjunction with their contractual obligation to the university shall ensure that teaching and course feedback forms are administered to each class (other than independent studies) in a manner consistent with the procedures set forth below. The primary purpose of the teaching and course feedback form is to provide instructors with feedback they can use to reflect upon and improve their pedagogy.
 - a. The instructor shall provide instructions for completing the teaching and course feedback form including a recounting of the primary purpose of the form. Where possible, the teaching and course feedback form will be completed in class, with adequate time allowed by the instructor. If completed in class, the instructor shall leave the room until the teaching and course feedback forms have been completed. If in-class administration of the teaching and course feedback form is not possible, students may complete the evaluation outside of class. Evaluations will be completed within the last 20% of the course or during the final examination period for the course.

- b. In the case of team-taught courses, students shall provide feedback to each instructor individually. The instructors shall determine the timing of the administration of the teaching and course feedback forms. (For example, if Professor A teaches the first half of the course and Professor B the last half, A and B shall determine whether it would be more appropriate to administer the teaching and course feedback forms for Professor A at the end of the course or at the conclusion of their active participation in the course).
2. Faculty legislation requires that students be informed that the teaching and course feedback forms and a summary of the teaching and course feedback form data will be provided to the instructor only after grades have been processed. In addition, the results will go to the instructor's academic unit head(s) for review. They will also be reviewed by the Rank and Tenure Committee, the provost, and the president in deliberations regarding promotion and tenure, and by interdisciplinary program chairs for decisions regarding program staffing. Hence, instructors should encourage students to complete the teaching and course feedback forms thoughtfully and carefully.
3. The procedure for appraising the results of the teaching and course feedback forms is as follows:
 - a. After the instructor has submitted final grades to the Office of the Registrar, the provost shall provide access to teaching and course feedback form data to the instructor and shall also retain access to this data. Candidates for tenure and promotion are responsible for providing this data to the Rank and Tenure Committee.
 - b. At the same time, each instructor's teaching and course feedback form data shall be shared with the appropriate academic unit head(s).
 - c. Instructors shall keep the teaching and course feedback form data and any summary reports for five years.
 - d. Teaching and course feedback form data and any summary reports play an important role in periodic faculty review according to the procedures spelled out in the Faculty Personnel Policy (Section IV, Part IV).
4. Individual academic units may add additional questions to the teaching and course feedback forms or add processes which are deemed desirable for purposes of faculty development and appraisal within their respective units.

H. Orders for Instructional Materials

The Higher Education Opportunity Act requires that the university have instructional materials selections and prices linked to the student schedule at the time students register for classes. The due date for faculty to submit requisitions for instructional materials for subsequent terms shall be communicated to faculty by the Office of the Provost at the beginning of each semester. Faculty must submit their requisitions for instructional materials by the announced date.

I. Room Assignments

Requests for classroom assignments are submitted through department chairs to the Office of the Registrar. Insofar as possible the registrar attempts to schedule classes as requested, contingent on availability of rooms, projected class sizes, and time preferences.

Section 4. CLASS SCHEDULES

Each semester, a tentative schedule is prepared within each department or school. The tentative schedule indicates courses to be offered, instructors, times, and classrooms. The tentative schedules are transmitted to the registrar for the preparation of the master schedule. Large enrollments require that classes be widely distributed throughout each available hour of the day and week. Changes in the master schedule, including time or place of meeting, may not be made without approval of the registrar, on recommendation of the appropriate chair(s) or dean(s).

Section 5. ACADEMIC CALENDAR GUIDELINES AND PROCESS

- A. The following guidelines are to be used by the registrar in developing a draft of the undergraduate academic calendar. Once prepared, the registrar's draft is to be reviewed by the provost. The provost presents a draft calendar to the President's Council for review after which a draft goes to the Faculty Assembly for consideration. The authority to adopt the calendar rests with the Faculty Assembly. Once approved by the Faculty Assembly, the calendar shall be published.
- B. The graduate academic calendar follows the same process as above except that the Graduate Council shall review the registrar's draft before it is submitted to the provost.
- C. General Policies
 - 1. In accordance with federal financial aid regulations, Fall and Spring Semesters in the undergraduate academic calendar are 15 weeks in duration, a period of time that includes Final Exam Week. A "week" is defined as any calendar week in which classes meet for at least one class day. For most courses a "class day" is any day Monday through Friday, although for some courses a "class day" may include Saturday. No classes are to be held on school holidays.
 - 2. Graduate calendars may differ from undergraduate calendars. Graduate programs must publish their schedules on a regular basis and inform their students of changes to those schedules in a timely manner.
 - 3. Calendars are to be adopted at least two years in advance of their starting date and may be amended in accordance with the usual process for calendar adoption.
- D. Guidelines for the Undergraduate Academic Calendar
 - 1. Summer Semester
 - a. Summer Semester for undergraduates organized as follows:
 - i. Summer Term I - 4 weeks that include 19-20 class days (starts one week after Memorial Day weekend)
 - ii. Summer Term II - 4 weeks that include 19-20 class days (starts one week following Summer Term I)
 - iii. Accelerated BSN Summer Full Term - 14 weeks (starts the week immediately following Memorial Day weekend)
 - b. Memorial Day, Juneteenth, and Independence Day are school holidays. No classes are held and offices are closed.
 - c. The Summer Semester calendar should allow residence halls to be cleared of occupancy at least two weeks prior to the start of the Fall Semester.
 - d. Summer Term I and II grades are due five business days after the end of the term. Accelerated BSN Summer Full Term grades are due before the first day of Fall Semester.
 - 2. Fall Semester
 - a. Fall Semester is 15 weeks in duration. Fall Semester begins the day after Labor Day except when doing so results in fewer than two weeks between the end of Fall Semester and the first class day in J-term, or fewer than two full weeks between Thanksgiving Break and Final Exam Week.
 - b. Labor Day is a school holiday. No classes are held and offices are closed.
 - c. Fall Semester shall begin on a Monday or Tuesday.

- d. Convocation is held at 10:00AM on the first day of classes in Fall Semester. If this falls on a Monday, classes resume at 12:30PM; if this falls on a Tuesday, classes resume at 11:50AM.
 - e. Fall Mid-Semester Break is the Friday of the 7th week of classes.
 - f. If Veterans Day falls on a Tuesday or Thursday, classes shall end at 10:55AM and resume at 11:50AM. If Veterans Day falls on a Monday, Wednesday, or Friday, the class schedule is not affected and Chapel may be devoted to recognition of the day.
 - g. Thanksgiving Break begins at 1:35PM on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. Classes resume at 8:00AM the following Monday. PLU offices are closed on Thursday and Friday of Thanksgiving Break.
 - h. Fall Semester grades are due no later than one business day prior to the beginning of J-term. Here, a "business day" is defined as a day in which PLU offices are open.
3. January Term
- a. J-term is 4 weeks (19-20 class days) in duration and should begin no sooner than two calendar weeks after the end of the preceding Fall Semester.
 - b. Birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr. is a school holiday. No classes are held and offices are closed.
 - c. J-term grades are due no later than one business day prior to the start of Spring Semester. Here, a "business day" is defined as a day in which PLU offices are open.
 - d. J-term Study Away courses must return by the last day of the J-term, must conform to the standard deadlines for submission of grades, and may not extend any deadlines into Spring Semester.
4. Spring Semester
- a. Spring Semester is 15 weeks in duration and should begin no sooner than one calendar week after the end of J-term unless doing so will result in Spring Semester ending after Memorial Day weekend. If that would occur, Spring Semester may begin directly after J-Term.
 - b. Spring Semester may begin on any day of the week.
 - c. Presidents' Day is a school holiday. No classes are held and offices are closed.
 - d. Spring Break begins after seven weeks of the semester and is one week in duration. Classes resume at 8:00AM on the Monday following Spring Break.
 - e. When Easter falls at the beginning of Spring Break, Good Friday is a school holiday and classes resume on Monday after Spring Break at 8:00AM.
 - f. When Easter falls at the end of Spring Break, classes resume on Monday at 8:00AM following Spring Break.
 - g. When Easter is separate from Spring Break, Good Friday is a school holiday and classes resume on Monday at 8:00AM.
 - h. Commencement is on Saturday following the last day of Final Exam Week and takes place no later than Memorial Day weekend.
 - i. Spring Semester grades are due no later than one business day prior to the start of Summer Term I. Here, a "business day" is defined as a day in which PLU offices are open.

Section 6. ACADEMIC YEAR RESPONSIBILITIES

Normal fulfillment of a faculty contract entails a variety of on-campus responsibilities outside the classroom throughout the 4-1-4 academic year. This includes January Term even when a faculty member is not teaching then.

Section 7. REGISTRATION

- A. The Office of the Registrar supplies faculty members and students with appropriate information about registration as required.
- B. The normal course load for undergraduate students in good standing is 12-17 semester hours of credit per semester, with 5 hours maximum during the January Term and 6 hours in the summer sessions. Provisional students, students on probation, and students reinstated after having enrollment terminated for academic reasons, are advised to carry the minimum full-time load of 12 semester hours.
- C. Changes in registration that involve adding or dropping courses may be made during the first two weeks of a term in accord with provisions in the general catalog. Students who drop a course after two weeks must obtain the instructor's signature and thus secure authorization for a withdrawal (W) to be entered on their transcripts.

Section 8. CANCELLATION

Neither an instructor nor a department has sole authority to cancel instruction in a subject. Unusual situations should be brought to the attention of the appropriate school or college dean for recommendation to the provost.

Section 9. CLASS LISTS

Class lists are distributed to all instructors on the first day of each term. The second class lists are distributed on the sixth day of each term. A more final list is distributed after the tenth day of each term, after changes in registration have been processed. No names may be added or deleted from class rosters after the deadline date for adding courses to a student's registration. Any discrepancies in the class list should be reported to the Office of the Registrar immediately.

Section 10. CLASS ATTENDANCE—STUDENTS

- A. The university assumes that every student has freely accepted personal responsibility for regular class attendance. Although attendance itself is not a measure of successful learning, and course grades are issued on the basis of academic performance and not on the basis of attendance alone, such performance normally includes regular participation in the total class experience and is evaluated accordingly. In the event of unavoidable absence, students are strongly encouraged as a matter of courtesy to inform their instructors and may be required to do so. Any arrangements for missed work are discretionary between instructor and student, except as specified below.
- B. Undergraduate students officially representing the university off campus for a performance, competition, or academic presentation shall not be penalized solely for missing class due to such events (including travel time). With prior documentation of such involvement, these students shall be allowed to complete missed exams or, at the discretion of the course instructor, substitute an alternative assignment. However, whether a missed lab, clinical, or other in-class activity may be made up shall be up to the academic unit.

- C. The burden is always on the student, not the faculty member, to take steps to remedy the effects of absences from class. In particular, the student is responsible for making prior arrangements with the instructor to complete missed work or to substitute comparable work instead. An academic unit may adopt shared policies to govern such assignments, including an expectation that the work be submitted, or the test taken, prior to the absence.

Section 11. CLASS ATTENDANCE—FACULTY

- A. Instructors who know in advance that they will be away from campus during scheduled class periods are responsible to arrange that their classes are covered during their absence. Arrangements should be cleared through department chairs or deans. Emergency absences should be reported at the earliest hour to the department chair or dean concerned.
- B. If an instructor is absent because of their own illness—or that of a family member—lasting more than three days, procedures outlined in the Family and Medical Leave of Absence policy should be followed.

Section 12. INSURANCE COVERAGE

The comprehensive liability insurance policy of Pacific Lutheran University provides coverage to the institution for any activities it conducts on or off campus. The coverage has been broadened to extend to trustees, officers, employees, and even volunteers for any activity they undertake that is sanctioned by the university and that furthers the interest of the university. To a limited extent, the personal liability of a student is also covered, but this coverage is restricted to those activities required of students by the university as a condition to students accomplishing their course work. Specifically, for students, it does not apply to extracurricular activities.

Section 13. INTEGRATIVE LEARNING OBJECTIVES OF PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY

- A. Pacific Lutheran University's Integrative Learning Objectives (ILOs) are designed to provide a common understanding of how learning at PLU is targeted. These objectives offer a unifying framework for understanding how our community defines the general skills or abilities that should be exhibited by an individual who is granted a PLU bachelor's degree. Therefore, they are integrative in nature.
- B. University policy, adopted by the Provost's Academic Council and the President's Council in the summer of 1998, lodges responsibility for the singularly academic components of assessment directly with academic departments, schools, and cross-disciplinary programs and their administrators. The ILOs are intended to provide these units with a conceptual reference in their efforts to build on and reinforce the goals of the General Education Program elements in their own particular curricula, as well as to assist the university in such assessment related activities as general student and alumni surveys. Academic units may refer to the ILOs in their annual assessment reports. Not all ILOs are expected to be dealt with equally by every program, much less by every course. (Any change in the current university policy that lodges primary responsibility for academic assessment with academic units and programs will include consultation with the faculty through its standing governing structure.)

- C. The ILOs do not represent, by themselves, all of our understanding of education. Rather, they are a part of a more complex web of education. One can conceptualize the outcomes of a PLU education in three general categories: knowledge, skills or abilities, and values and attitudes. These outcomes occur simultaneously at the individual course, program or major, and institutional levels. Work to develop and measure or evaluate the learning outcomes of students is connected to and informed by the learning outcomes set by groups of faculty in departments, schools, and programs. Likewise, these activities are guided by the outcomes established by the whole faculty for all PLU graduates. Students' perceptions of the educational process should provide useful feedback at all three levels.
- D. The ILOs, which relate primarily to the skills/abilities domain at the whole institutional level, range from the ability to critically analyze and resolve complex issues and problems to being able to work in and understand constantly changing environments, cultures, and times. They transcend disciplines and specialized knowledge, but are not meant to replace or change the contextualized knowledge base of disciplines and fields. They are meant to serve as a useful framework that unifies education throughout Pacific Lutheran University while disciplinary study provides students with the knowledge and understanding of a field that will allow them to function effectively in their chosen area. With respect to this base of knowledge, these global statements can be made:
1. The PLU graduate is expected to have a broad knowledge of the basic liberal arts and sciences.
 2. The PLU graduate should have an understanding of the interconnections among these basic liberal arts and sciences that provide the broad framework for living with the complexities of life.
 3. The PLU graduate is expected to develop an in-depth knowledge of a specified area of knowledge designated as a major within the university.
 4. The PLU graduate should have an understanding of the interconnections among the basic liberal arts and sciences and the in-depth knowledge of her/his specified major area.
- E. The Integrative Learning Objectives

In addition to the knowledge base described above, and an awareness of how different disciplinary methodologies are used, every student at Pacific Lutheran University is expected to develop the following abilities:

1. Critical Reflection
 - a. Select sources of information using appropriate research methods, including those employing technology, and make use of that information carefully and critically.
 - b. Consider issues from multiple perspectives.
 - c. Evaluate assumptions and consequences of different perspectives in assessing possible solutions to problems.
 - d. Understand and explain divergent viewpoints on complex issues, critically assess the support available for each, and defend one's own judgments.
2. Expression
 - a. Communicate clearly and effectively in both written and oral forms.
 - b. Adapt message to various audiences using appropriate media, convention, or styles.
 - c. Create symbols or meanings in a variety of expressive media, both verbal and nonverbal.
3. Interaction with Others
 - a. Work creatively to identify and clarify the issues of concern.
 - b. Acknowledge and respond to conflicting ideas, principles, and traditions, identifying common interests where possible.
 - c. Develop and promote effective strategies and interpersonal relationships for implementing cooperative actions.

4. Valuing
 - a. Articulate and critically assess one's own values, with an awareness of the communities and traditions that have helped to shape them.
 - b. Recognize how others have arrived at values different from one's own, and consider their view charitably and with an appreciation for the context in which they emerged.
 - c. Develop a habit of caring for oneself, for others, and for the environment.
 - d. Approach moral, spiritual, and intellectual development as a life-long process of making informed choices in one's commitments.
 - e. Approach one's commitments with a high level of personal responsibility and professional accountability.
5. Multiple Frameworks
 - a. Recognize and understand how cultures profoundly shape different assumptions and behaviors.
 - b. Identify issues and problems facing people in every culture (including one's own), seeking constructive strategies for addressing them.
 - c. Cultivate respect for diverse cultures, practices, and traditions.
 - d. Note: even though these objectives are listed here as discrete elements, they are highly interconnected.

Section 14. STATEMENT ON LEARNING ENVIRONMENTS

- A. With learning at the heart of our enterprise, Pacific Lutheran University must insist on high standards for the physical and virtual environments in which we engage our students. These spaces should communicate to students that their learning is our highest priority and facilitate with smart design and appropriate resources our ability to pursue our mission. Well-designed and maintained environments positively affect concentration, morale, and behavior; help attract and retain both students and faculty; and are essential to activities of learning, whether this means encouraging lively, thoughtful, and inclusive verbal exchanges or conducting inquiry using specific technology in the lab, classroom, studio, rehearsal room, online, or elsewhere.
- B. Thus, Pacific Lutheran University supports excellent and well-maintained learning spaces (including, but not limited to, classrooms, laboratories, studios, rehearsal rooms, clinical and athletic spaces, and offices) in keeping with the following statement of values:
 1. Learning spaces should be comfortable, convenient, spacious, acoustically well-designed, well-lit, aesthetically pleasing, and equipped appropriately for the instruction assigned to that space.
 2. Information technology should be thoughtfully deployed to give students exposure to up-to-date platforms, extend the boundaries of the classroom, facilitate communication, and make informational resources more accessible.
 3. Strong initiatives regarding faculty development will empower instructors to make best use of available resources and shape the new instructional landscape as technological advancement leads to the design of imaginative learning environments that extend beyond classrooms and class times.
 4. The process of continually updating our teaching spaces and instructional technology will ideally combine long-term vision about optimal design with a systematic approach to improvements that includes input from the faculty utilizing those spaces, as well as rigorous adherence to a rising minimum standard for every learning space.

5. Systems for reporting and addressing problems will optimize communication and response time.
6. Dedication of funds to all of these efforts—as determined long-range in the campus master plan development and in procedures for allocations over shorter terms (such as through capital improvement and equipment budgets)—will be as transparent as possible, so that the university community can cooperatively set priorities.

Section 15. JANUARY TERM RATIONALE

- A. The January Term's intensive, four-week format is a unique pedagogical opportunity. It supports study away, in-depth focus on a single theme or topic, and the use of student-centered and active-learning pedagogies. The January Term's intensive format also supports other pedagogical activities that contribute to building an intentional culture of learning inside and outside the classroom.
- B. Taking advantage of January Term's unique format will strengthen PLU's academic program, contribute to the flourishing of the university's academic culture, showcase the themes that PLU 2010 identifies as defining a distinctive education, and allow PLU to distinguish itself among universities in the region.
- C. The January Term offers an opportunity for an intensive First-Year Experience Program that combines rigorous academic study with co-curricular activities that serve the goals of the First-Year Experience Program—thinking, literacy, and community. Further, the January Term offers the opportunity to orient students to PLU's mission, support them in understanding how they position themselves within the PLU community and the world, and support them as they embrace their role as active citizens.
- D. Academic offerings in the January Term should be those that are suited to the intensive, four-week pedagogical context.
- E. Offerings particularly suited to the January Term include:
 1. International and domestic study away.
 2. Service-learning.
 3. Student-faculty research.
 4. Major and minor program offerings particularly suited to an intensive format.
 5. First-Year Experience courses.
 6. Some internship opportunities.
 7. Experiential learning opportunities (courses that link intellectual study with active experiences based on that learning).
 8. Courses appropriate to the intensive format because of individual faculty style and pedagogical decisions.
 9. Other courses that, for pedagogical reasons, are effectively offered in an intensive term.
 10. Curricular and co-curricular programming that contributes to an intentional culture of learning and so supports a flourishing academic culture at PLU.

Section 16. SUMMER SESSIONS

- A. Summer Sessions Salaries
 1. Each year, summer salaries are set after considering summer tuition rates, annual PLU salaries, and regional salary trends. Payment of full salary is contingent upon adequate minimum enrollments, with exceptions made by the Provost's Office, in consultation with deans, chairs, and faculty, to support courses in selected areas. Each year information for determining summer session salaries will accompany faculty contracts.

SECTION IV: PERSONNEL POLICIES AND EMPLOYMENT BENEFITS

Part I. - ACCESS TO PERSONNEL AND FACULTY FILES

Section 1.

- A. In accordance with state law, faculty members may inspect their personnel file if such a request is made in writing to Human Resources. Personnel files are maintained in Human Resources. A faculty member may petition Human Resources to remove information from the personnel file that they believe to be inaccurate. If Human Resources declines to do so, the faculty member may place a rebuttal statement in the personnel file.
- B. Confidential information regarding a member of the university's faculty, such as evaluative material prepared by colleagues and others, is not normally maintained in the faculty member's personnel file. Such material may be placed in faculty files maintained by the president, the provost, the dean of the member's school or division, and/or the chair of the faculty member's department. This material is not subject to regular access by the faculty member. A faculty member who is concerned about confidential information in their faculty file should contact the provost. The provost or president may authorize access to information in these files. A faculty member may petition the provost to remove information from the faculty file that they believe to be inaccurate. If the provost declines to do so, the faculty member may petition the Conciliation Committee and/or place a rebuttal statement in the faculty file.
- C. Any request from third parties for any information contained in a faculty member's personnel file, faculty file, or other confidential files, must be made through the president. Persons who are not connected with the university shall not have access to any personnel file, faculty file, or other confidential files except where access is required by law, or with written permission from both the individual faculty member concerned and the president.
- D. In cases where certain committees, because of their functions, may require relevant information from a faculty member's personnel file, faculty file, or other confidential files, such information may be made available at the discretion or direction of the provost or the president. Deans and chairs may request to review the personnel file, faculty file, or other confidential files of a faculty member in their unit.
- E. In no case shall any information be copied or taken from a personnel file, faculty file, or other confidential files except with written permission from the provost or president.

Part II. - EQUAL OPPORTUNITY, AFFIRMATIVE ACTION, AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT, AND SEXUAL MISCONDUCT

For the most current version of these university-wide policies, with which all faculty must comply, go to <https://www.plu.edu/personnel-manual/>

Part III. - PHILOSOPHY OF FACULTY COMPENSATION

Section 1.

Pacific Lutheran University's academic quality and reputation for excellence depend most directly on its faculty who foster its mission to "...empower students for lives of thoughtful inquiry, service, leadership and care—for other people, for their communities, and for the earth." Students are intellectually stimulated, challenged academically, and engaged in the mission of the university when they interact with quality faculty who are engaged in that same mission. These interactions represent a considerable investment. Faculty give generously of themselves to students, not only as teachers, but also as mentors and advisors to students exploring their vocational questions.

Section 2.

Faculty are motivated by their passion for their disciplines, as well as their love of teaching. Both must be embraced and supported. The university values and recognizes its dependence on faculty who are committed to excellence and who are vitally engaged in their teaching, scholarship, and citizenship. Further, it seeks to cultivate such a faculty. Doing so requires that the university honor faculty's investment in the shared mission of Pacific Lutheran University by acknowledging and supporting faculty's efforts in teaching, scholarship, and citizenship.

Section 3.

- A. The university must recognize the value of hiring tenure-track faculty and retaining tenured faculty. It must recognize the considerable intellectual capital that faculty bring to their dual roles as teachers and scholars, and provide appropriate resources for faculty's research and creative projects. This will allow faculty to grow as teachers and scholars and, in turn, stimulate and challenge our students.
- B. Thus, Pacific Lutheran University supports a compensation system for faculty (direct compensation, benefits, and career-related investments) that:
 - 1. Is compatible with and supportive of the university's mission statement.
 - 2. Is fair and non-discriminatory.
 - 3. Attracts and retains a highly qualified diverse faculty by setting pay competitive with peer institutions and recruiting markets, and which is at the same time aligned with the availability of institutional and unit resources.
 - 4. Demonstrates the high value the university places on excellent faculty by rewarding the tenure and promotion of productive and skilled teachers, scholars, and university citizens.
 - 5. Helps the university compete successfully for faculty with a mix of disciplinary expertise and skills vital to its mission.
 - 6. Provides long-term opportunities and resources for professional development.
 - 7. Is reviewed annually to ensure that it remains competitive with the appropriate peer institutions.

Part IV. - FACULTY PERSONNEL POLICY

Section 1.

- A. Faculty members at Pacific Lutheran University enjoy all rights not only of the law of the land but also of their individual contracts with the university, which incorporate those embodied in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws as approved by the Board of Regents under the Articles of Incorporation and Bylaws of the university. The university is understood to be an institution whose members are responsible for and to its policies.
- B. Universities exist for the preservation, perpetuation, and expansion of knowledge and truth. This tradition is grounded in the traditions of the most ancient Western universities. The Lutheran Reformation promoted transformative ideas about the freedom of conscience, interpretation, and inquiry—ideas that contributed to the development of a Lutheran higher education tradition. Institutions in this tradition, such as Pacific Lutheran University, affirm the rights and responsibilities of all academics to search for truth. This search requires the rights of full academic freedom that is essential to teaching and to research. Academic freedom implies fundamental protection of the rights of faculty in teaching and of students to freedom in learning. Freedom in research is fundamental to the advancement of truth. As an institution firmly grounded in the tradition of Lutheran higher education, Pacific Lutheran University upholds these Principles of Academic Freedom for all faculty:
 - 1. Faculty are entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of the results, subject to the adequate performance of other academic duties.
 - 2. Faculty are entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing their subject, but should be careful not to introduce into their teaching controversial matter which has no relation to their subject.
 - 3. Faculty are citizens, members of learned professions, and officers of an educational institution. As citizens, faculty are free from institutional censorship or discipline. As scholars and educational officers, faculty should remember that the public may judge the academic profession and Pacific Lutheran University by their utterances. When speaking as scholars and educational officers, faculty should be as accurate as possible, should exercise appropriate restraint, should show respect for others, and should make every effort to indicate whether or not they are speaking for the institution.
- C. The principles above and the policies below are grounded in the belief that the protection of academic freedom by tenure has as its operationally central provision the right to teach, freely yet responsibly, in one's discipline.
- D. The university strives to provide every member of the faculty with a harmonious environment conducive to good performance.
 - 1. Faculty members should refrain not only from unethical actions toward their colleagues, but also from any that could objectively be regarded as demeaning. This is not to be construed, however, to limit anyone's right and duty to correct or criticize individual actions, statements, or judgments of anyone when this lies within the scope of one's regular activities as a scholar, faculty member, or citizen. Nor is it to bar the giving of unfavorable but objective evaluation of anyone in the course of organized periodic review procedures.
 - 2. The teaching assignments for all faculty members should as well as possible reflect their academic preparation, experience, and interests. Teaching schedules should be based on the needs of students and programs and should be fair for all faculty members. When making assignments, administrators should give maximum consideration to the preferences and best interests of individual faculty members.

3. The considerations above should apply equally to the provision of teaching facilities, office space, library and equipment funds, secretarial services, and any other tangible aspects of the working arrangements for faculty members.
 4. Criteria for promotion should be applied uniformly to all candidates, regardless of varying prepossessions or prejudices that might be involved.
 5. All faculty members should share to some reasonable degree in the salary improvements available in any given year. In addition to promotion raises (see below), additional adjustments could include across-the-board salary increases, adjustments to rectify salary inequities, adjustments for consistency with external comparable salary levels, and adjustments for years of experience. A seemingly reasonable guideline is to use at least half of the funds available after promotion raises for across-the-board salary increases. In order to maintain an equitable salary structure, and to prevent undue compression between ranks in the future, adjustments for promotion should be a consistent 10% of the current median salary of the rank to which a faculty member has been promoted. Such increases reflect the professional accomplishments that promotion indicates.
 6. No faculty members should be denied rights or privileges for which they qualify under university policies. This applies, for example, to appointment to regular rank and accompanying eligibility for tenure, which the Constitution Bylaws (Article V, Section 1, Subsection a,2) state must be given to all full-time teachers.
- E. The university community strives to secure the rights of its individual members, including those of due process, especially when conflict arises between members or between the university and its members.
1. Disciplinary action (e.g., denial of an across-the-board salary increase) should not be taken against a faculty member without a clear statement in writing of the reason(s). Sufficient notice should be given so that correction of the record and/or other explanatory or defensive action may be taken before irreparable effects accrue. For the same reason, during any challenge of a faculty member's actions, rights, or standing, utmost caution should be exerted to afford maximal protection of personal and professional reputations, especially among students and colleagues.
 2. Disciplinary action taken against a faculty member, where it can be justified and must be employed, should not be personally demeaning, nor should it be of such nature that it itself becomes a barrier to the faculty member in attempting to correct or improve performance. In no case shall any discomfiting action or pattern of actions be taken against a faculty member to encourage resignation.
 3. If from observation and evaluation of performance a faculty member's colleagues and administrators conclude that they are not performing at acceptable levels, they should be given counsel by administrators and also be given every reasonable tangible assistance that they, the immediate academic superior, and a mutually acceptable third faculty member decide by majority vote is needed to effect improvement. ("Reasonable" here means possible within the constraints of time, budget, and facilities that apply to faculty in the university generally.)
 4. Only in cases in which immediate harm to students, colleagues, or individuals themselves is a demonstrable possibility should any faculty members be suspended, and this should be with full continuing pay. The suspension order and the reason for such summary action should be given in writing, and formal termination or dismissal proceedings should be begun within no less than thirty and no more than sixty days of that time.
 5. The administration is directed by the Faculty Constitution Bylaws to bring any potential dismissal case to the Conciliation Committee (Article VI, Section 2). A faculty member, after seeking remedy through normal administrative channels, may bring any problems to the Conciliation Committee (Article VI, Section 1). This committee should organize itself in such a way that for each case presented to it, one of its members is identifiably responsible for directing its study. Promptness of action in its conciliatory efforts will often be crucial, and it should attempt to conciliate, or to issue its considered judgment on a fair conciliation, within no more than thirty days.

6. The Conciliation Committee should recognize that the faculty as a whole is always one of the interested parties in any faculty member's case in which problems of inadequate or unclear policy are found. In such a case, it should inform the faculty not of names or other details of the case, but of all issues of policy and procedure and give its recommendations for corrections.

Section 2. FACULTY REVIEW PROCESS FOR TENURE-TRACK AND TENURED FACULTY

- A. Organized periodic review procedures cover the time both before and following the granting of tenure. The objective is to promote faculty development, ensure teaching effectiveness and the fulfillment of instructional and other faculty responsibilities, and promote fair treatment within the university. Comprehensive peer review is the hallmark of an autonomous, self-governing faculty body and is essential to our practice as responsible members of the academy.
- B. These regular reviews are designed to serve a number of university constituencies and important functions of the university.
 1. To serve individual faculty members in the pursuit of tenure and promotion by assessing the progress of faculty members with regards to teaching, scholarship and service.
 2. To support the work of the Rank and Tenure Committee by establishing a relatively uniform system of equitable evaluation for faculty members between and across units.
 3. To contribute to ongoing assessment across the university by allowing the university to remain in compliance with accreditation bodies on issues of faculty review.
- C. The review process described in the Faculty Handbook brings the timeline and practices of departments, divisions, schools, and programs in line with the criteria for the review process determined by faculty legislation.
- D. In order for chairs and deans to complete accurate and timely reviews and to ensure that each faculty member is being treated fairly in the process, it is the primary responsibility of the faculty member to know all review deadlines, complete all reports, and, where necessary, respond to reviews in accordance with the timeline as indicated in the PLU Faculty Handbook.
- E. It is the primary responsibility of the chair of each department or dean of each school to make sure reviews are conducted in accordance with PLU Faculty Handbook policy. Toward this end, the Office of the Provost will work with faculty, chairs, and deans by keeping a master schedule for reviews, providing timely reminders, and assuring the quality of the peer review process.
- F. Before the granting of tenure, review procedures shall be as follows:
 1. By June 1, the faculty member will submit to the department chair or dean, as appropriate, a report of activities for the closing academic year. A template for the annual activity report will be provided by the Office of the Provost.
 - a. The report will include a self-evaluation, reflections on available teaching and course feedback forms, and a discussion of priorities for the coming academic year in regards to teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service. The criteria used in the reports will be those for appointment, promotion, and rank described in the Bylaws to Article V of the Faculty

Constitution, or commensurate criteria adopted for this purpose by departments, divisions, schools or colleges.

b. Academic units are encouraged to conduct peer evaluations also.

2. The chair or dean will by July 15 write an annual performance review for each faculty member, which shall be based on the report described in 1.a. above and other sources of information such as classroom visits, reviews by peers, and scholarly products. The chair or dean will use the criteria for appointment, promotion, and rank described in the Bylaws to Article V of the Faculty Constitution, or commensurate criteria adopted for this purpose by departments, divisions, schools or colleges. The chair or dean will meet with the faculty member and discuss the report and performance review. Written and signed records of each meeting shall be made, copies of which are retained by faculty members, department chair, and dean, and submitted to the Office of the Provost, along with a copy of the faculty member's report and of the review by the chair or dean, by September 15. The faculty member may supplement the review by appending their own statement to the review as it is forwarded by the chair/dean to the Office of the Provost.
3. The discussion (2 above) will be specific with regard to each faculty member's strengths and weaknesses, including recommendations for improvement and an appraisal of any significant reservations about performance including teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service.
4. The first evaluation at the university shall note in writing that a faculty member has been informed of the conditions of employment, expectations for teaching, scholarship, and service, and the rank and tenure rules of the university.
5. During the third year of probationary credit leading toward tenure, a comprehensive written review by the chair or dean is due February 26 in the Office of the Provost (for those hired with credit towards tenure, see note below about the timing of the review). This will constitute the annual review for the third probationary year. The review will be generated according to the procedures described above (at F.1-4, deadlines adjusted). The review will in addition explicitly address the advisability of retaining a faculty member based on the following:
 - a. Evidence of the faculty member's past and current performance. Procedures for the handling of the third-year or other subsequent comprehensive reviews shall be conducted in such a way that this review is congruent in evidence and practice with the procedures for tenure and promotion review. While each department, division, school, college or unit is granted the authority and responsibility to set their own specific review guidelines (see note below), all reviews shall include consideration of the following:
 - i. Materials assembled by the candidate that provide evidence of their performance in teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service. Evidence will include a resumé; self-assessment statement; teaching and course feedback forms and any summary reports; and any other documents that may be useful. These might include copies of publications and other scholarly work, copies of syllabi and other course materials, and/or evidence of service activities. These materials shall be distributed to department/school/college colleagues. These materials may also be made available to the other colleagues who have been invited to provide input about the faculty member.
 - ii. Letters from colleagues solicited specifically for the review process. This should include letters from all department/school colleagues, all team-teaching colleagues, the chairs or directors of any cross-disciplinary programs in which the faculty member teaches, and any other colleagues designated by the faculty member to provide input for the review on any aspect of the faculty member's performance that they wish. It is especially important to have letters from those who can provide input based on direct observation of teaching.
 - b. Expectation of continued competence and/or reasonable progress toward tenure and promotion criteria (described in the Bylaws to Article V of the Faculty Constitution) and any applicable department, division, school, or college criteria.

c. Departmental and university projected needs, staffing, and planning.

d. Notes:

i. Procedures for the handling of third-year and subsequent reviews shall be more explicitly developed in schools, divisions, and colleges. In all cases, however, for the third-year review, the review committee will include a faculty member from outside the person's unit, appointed by the provost after consultation with the dean of the unit. The role of the outside committee member shall be to provide a pan-university perspective to the review process. This person shall participate fully according to the third-year review procedures of the unit. A candidate's file is due to the department/school/college by January 15, letters from colleagues are due to the chair/dean by February 8, and a draft comprehensive third-year review is due to the faculty member by February 18.

ii. For faculty members who were hired with years of credit toward tenure, the timing of the third-year review shall be as follows: (1) with one year of credit toward tenure, the review shall occur in the third year of tenure eligibility (i.e. the second tenure-stream year at PLU), (2) with two years of credit towards tenure, the review shall occur in the fourth year of tenure eligibility (i.e. the second tenure-stream year at PLU), and (3) with three years of credit towards tenure, the review shall occur in the fourth year of tenure eligibility (i.e. the first tenure-stream year at PLU). If a faculty member has two years of credit toward tenure as the result of service at PLU, then that faculty member may elect for their third-year review to occur in their first tenure-stream year at PLU after consultation with their chair, dean, and provost and only if specified in their contract at time of hire to the tenure-eligible position.

6. During the year in which an individual is a candidate for tenure a comprehensive review about that person (following the Rank and Tenure Committee Procedures in the Faculty Handbook, Section IV, Part IX, Section 1, "Consideration for Tenure") will be completed according to the timetable set by the Rank and Tenure guidelines (see Rank and Tenure Committee Procedures in the Faculty Handbook, Section IV, Part IX, Section 5). This will constitute the annual review for the sixth probationary year.

a. Copies of these statements shall be retained by the provost.

b. It shall be the responsibility of the provost to provide this information to the Rank and Tenure Committee when faculty members are under consideration for promotion or tenure.

7. Nothing in this section precludes recourse to the university grievance procedure, described in the Bylaws to Article VI, "Grievance, Disciplinary, and Dismissal Procedures" of the Faculty Constitution.

G. After the granting of tenure, continued review procedures shall be as follows:

1. By June 1, the faculty member will submit to the department chair or dean, as appropriate, a report of activities for the closing academic year. A template for the annual activity report will be provided by the Office of the Provost.

a. The report will include a self-evaluation, reflections on teaching and course feedback forms, and a discussion of priorities for the coming academic year in regards to teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service. The criteria used in the reports will be those for appointment, promotion, and rank described in the Bylaws to Article V of the Faculty Constitution, or commensurate criteria adopted for this purpose by departments, divisions, schools or colleges.

b. Where applicable, the report will describe an individual's plan for sabbatical leave or other self-improvement. (See “Sabbatical, Regular, and Special Leaves of Absence” in the Faculty Handbook, Section IV, Part X, Section 4.)

2. During the fourth year and the subsequent fourth year after achievement of tenure, the chair or dean will complete a comprehensive review according to the procedures described in (F.5.a.i-ii.) above, focusing on the faculty member’s performance in the years since the last such review and progress toward promotion. This review should take into consideration the previous self-evaluations and reviews. The chair or dean will meet with the faculty member and discuss the written review by April 21. The report along with the review by the chair or dean shall be due April 30 in the Office of the Provost.
- H. For those faculty members who achieve the rank of professor, or have been tenured for eight years, continued review procedures shall be as follows:
1. By June 1, the faculty member will submit to the department chair or dean, as appropriate, a report of activities for the closing academic year.
 - a. The report will include a self-evaluation, reflections on available teaching and course feedback forms, and a discussion of priorities for the coming academic year in regards to teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service. The criteria used in the reports will be those for appointment, promotion and rank described in the Bylaws to Article V of the Faculty Constitution, or commensurate criteria adopted for this purpose by departments, divisions, schools, or colleges.
 - b. Where applicable, the report will describe an individual’s plan for sabbatical leave or other self-improvement. (See “Sabbatical, Regular, and Special Leaves of Absence” in the Faculty Handbook, Section IV, Part X, Section 4.)
 2. Each fifth year, the chair or dean will complete a comprehensive review according to the procedures described in (F.5.a.i-ii.) above, focusing on the years since the last review. The chair or dean will meet with the faculty member and discuss the written review by April 21. The report along with the review by the chair or dean shall be due April 30 in the Office of the Provost.
- These procedures for faculty review are not the procedures for censure or dismissal, which are dealt with separately in the Faculty Handbook (Bylaws to Article VI of the Faculty Constitution and D. below).
- I. The faculty has recommended that the provost provide to the Rank and Tenure Committee such information on any tenured faculty member being considered for dismissal, and that the provost obtain the early and continuing advice of the Rank and Tenure Committee in such cases. Any such role of the Rank and Tenure Committee precedes use of the more formal mechanisms for conciliation or dismissal that are provided in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws.

Section 3. FACULTY REVIEW PROCESS FOR CONTINGENT FACULTY

- A. The purpose of these reviews is to ensure quality teaching and learning is consistent across the university. In addition, these reviews are an essential component of on-going university assessment. These reviews also support the professional development of our faculty members.
1. Within 30 days of the end of the term in which teaching responsibilities for the academic year are completed or by June 1 (whichever is earlier), the faculty member will complete an annual activity report for the appropriate chair or dean. A template for the activity report will be provided by the Office of the Provost. The report will include a self-evaluation, and reflections on available teaching and course feedback forms. Where relevant, the report will include a discussion of priorities for the coming academic year in regards to teaching, scholarly/professional activity, and service. Thirty days after the receipt of the report, the chair or dean will complete a performance review based on the report above and deliver the completed review to the Office of the Provost; the chair or dean will also give a copy of the review to the faculty member. A template for this review will be provided by the Office of the Provost. The faculty member may supplement the review by appending their own statement to the review.
 2. During the third year of teaching at the university, the chair or dean will write a comprehensive review of the faculty member consistent with the procedures described above (in Section 2, F. 1. a.). The chair or dean will meet with the faculty member and discuss the written review. Written and signed records of each meeting shall be made, copies of which are retained by the faculty member, department chair, and dean, and submitted to the Office of the Provost, along with a copy of the faculty member's report and of the review by the chair or dean, by April 30. During each subsequent fifth year of teaching at the university, the chair or dean will complete a comprehensive review according to these same procedures focusing on the years since the last review. In the intervening years, the chair or dean will conduct the annual reviews in accordance with the procedures described above (in A.1.).

Part V. - FAMILY/MEDICAL LEAVES OF ABSENCE

For the most current version of the policy, which was approved by the Faculty Assembly and the President's Council in May 1999, go to <https://www.plu.edu/personnel-manual/> and scroll down to Benefits>Leaves>Family and Medical Leaves of Absence: Faculty.

Part VI. - POLICY ON DELAYING ACCUMULATION OF QUALIFYING YEAR OF ELIGIBILITY FOR TENURE

Section 1.

Non-tenured, tenure-track faculty above the rank of instructor may claim that a given year of appointment should not be included in the count of accumulated years toward eligibility for tenure.

Section 2.

For all such claims, the circumstances of that year shall pose distinct difficulty in accomplishing what is expected of faculty by the time of tenure candidacy. Included in the range of possible such circumstances are the birth of a child, the adoption of a child, extraordinary responsibilities in caring for parents or dependents, and the undertaking of special opportunities in the faculty member's professional field.

Section 3.

Claims for not counting a particular year as a qualifying year of eligibility toward tenure shall be made in the form of a request for approval to the provost, whenever possible in advance of the year that is requested. Claims shall be in writing, accompanied by evidence and reasoning believed sufficient to warrant the claim and lead to its approval. The response of the provost shall be in writing, and shall have been informed by consultation with the faculty member's chair (where applicable), dean, and the chair of the Rank and Tenure Committee.

Part VII. - POLICY ON UNIT INTERPRETATIONS OF CRITERIA FOR TENURE AND PROMOTION

Section 1.

- A. Unit interpretations of the criteria for tenure and promotion, if they are developed, should be consistent with and should not limit the scope or alter the rigor of the university criteria. When units develop or revise interpretations of the university criteria, they are advised to submit them to the Rank and Tenure Committee and to the provost for feedback/discussion.
- B. It is advised that unit interpretations of the university criteria be presented to prospective and new faculty in the context of the university criteria, and be accompanied by the university criteria.
- C. If a unit has an interpretation document, chairs/deans should include it with a candidate's tenure/promotion evaluation letter to the Rank and Tenure Committee.
- D. Unit interpretations are merely advisory statements to help guide the Rank and Tenure Committee's deliberations. Ultimately, it is the charge of the committee to ensure that the standards for achieving tenure and promotion are kept consistent across the university.

Part VIII. - POLICY ON USE AND DISTRIBUTION OF SELF-ASSESSMENT STATEMENTS WRITTEN FOR PERFORMANCE REVIEWS

Self-assessment statements are written to conform to the guidelines and purposes of formal university structures for performance reviews, including annual, third-year, tenure, promotion, fourth-year post-tenure, and post-sabbatical reviews. Faculty members and administrators who receive another person's self-assessment in connection with a performance review process are not permitted, without written consent, to disclose, distribute, or use all or any part of such statement for any purpose outside of the process of evaluation for which the assessment was prepared.

Part IX. - THE RANK AND TENURE COMMITTEE PROCEDURES

The following are the internal operating procedures of the Rank and Tenure Committee in effect at the time this Handbook was published. Revisions are made periodically by the committee and are on file in the Office of the Provost.

Section 1. CONSIDERATION FOR TENURE

A. Initiating Consideration for Tenure

1. The provost provides a list of faculty in their sixth qualifying year of service, including credit toward tenure for service elsewhere. All these are automatically considered, subject to the terms and conditions of tenure eligibility in the Bylaws, Article V, Section 1.A.
2. In exceptional cases, a dean or chair may recommend consideration before the sixth year. The faculty member may decline such early consideration.

B. Gathering Information and Recommendations for Tenure

1. The candidate provides the basic materials for the tenure file, including summaries of student evaluations, third-year reviews, and annual reviews. The candidate is informed by the Office of the Provost if any crucial documents are missing or incomplete so that the candidate may attempt to complete the file.
2. Candidates submit a current resumé, a self-assessment based on the criteria for tenure, an official transcript showing conferral of highest degree, and any other material they feel is directly relevant to their case (e.g., abstracts of publications, special syllabi, reviews of performances). Candidates do not normally meet with the committee, but they may ask to do so if they think it essential.
3. Candidates provide the names of three members of the PLU faculty outside their discipline, and of three persons off-campus who have knowledge of their professional performance. The committee sends a request for a recommendation to each of these, together with a copy of PLU's criteria for tenure.
4. The candidate's chair or dean provides a comprehensive recommendation, including both a detailed analysis of the candidate's record with regard to each criterion and a discussion of the candidate's role in the future of the department or school. Normally the chair or dean should consult with the faculty of the department or school in preparing this recommendation. Some schools or departments may use a faculty committee to formulate the recommendation.
5. Faculty within the candidate's department or school are all asked to give a written recommendation directly to the committee, guided by the criteria in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws. If the response rate is low, the committee asks the chair or dean to encourage faculty to reply.
6. A list of candidates for tenure is distributed to all faculty with an invitation to submit a signed recommendation about any candidate. The committee is especially interested in information from faculty who have worked with the candidate in professional or service activities: team-teaching, research projects, committees, or task forces.

7. All recommendations and other data are kept in a special tenure file locked in the Office of the Provost. Only members of the committee, the provost, and the president have access to this file, and they are bound to maintain its confidentiality. For example, neither the candidate nor a chair or dean is told about the particular contents of any letter or even if a particular individual has submitted a recommendation. The purpose of this strict confidentiality is to secure the most candid and substantial recommendations.

The committee is conscious of its obligation to corroborate claims made in confidential documents. In exceptional cases, those who have written recommendations may be asked to meet with the committee for discussion or otherwise to provide additional information.

8. The committee uses as much informed opinion and accurate data as it can. Special attention is given to the comprehensive recommendation from the chair or dean, and to the individual recommendations from faculty within the candidate's department or school. Also crucial is evidence of the quality of teaching, including but not limited to teaching and course feedback forms.

C. Deliberation for Tenure

1. Throughout its deliberations, the committee is concerned with these questions: Are recommendations being made with regard to the criteria for tenure specified in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws? Is there clear evidence that the candidate will be a permanently valuable teacher and scholar (or artist, performer, coach, etc.) in their discipline? Have recommendations for or against a candidate been based on this kind of evidence? Are the standards for achieving tenure being kept consistent across the university?
2. The process of the committee's deliberations is as follows:
 - a. The committee checks each candidate's file to see if it is complete. If not, every effort is made to obtain crucial documents.
 - b. Each committee member reads all information submitted for all candidates, though the discussion of each case is organized by one member of the committee. Discussion focuses on the criteria for tenure and on the long-term needs of the department or school. If recommendations are contradictory or not fully supported with reliable evidence, additional material is often sought from the candidate, from the chair or dean, or from others who may have the needed information or perspective.
 - c. Committee members realize that any personal relationship with candidates or with those recommending them must not interfere with the obligation to make thoughtful and just decisions. Members express their personal opinion of a candidate only after all the information provided to the committee has been discussed.
 - d. By faculty legislation (May 9, 1986), no faculty may serve on the committee the year they are considered for tenure. (Although current committee members may be considered for promotion, no member so considered participates in any review of the information or recommendations pertinent to their candidacy.)
 - e. After thorough consideration of all evidence for a particular candidate, a vote is taken by secret ballot. Advisory members (e.g., students) do not vote. The results of this first ballot are only preliminary.
 - f. After preliminary votes on all candidates, each case is reviewed again, with attention to any new evidence and to the consistency of applied criteria. Then a final vote is taken on each case by secret ballot.
 - g. The committee first reports the affirmative or negative character of each final ballot (but not the exact proportion of yeas and nays) to the provost, who is then invited to discuss with the committee those cases in which their judgment differs. An attempt is made to reach a - consensus or at least to specify clearly the reasons for any disagreement. In some cases, the committee may decide to reconsider its recommendation.

- h. The committee then reports the affirmative or negative character of its recommendation (but not the exact proportion of yeas and nays) to each candidate, to that candidate's chair or dean, and to the president.
 - i. In the case of a negative recommendation from the Rank and Tenure Committee, the candidate may request reasons for that recommendation from the chair of the committee, after a 24-hour waiting period. These reasons reflect a process in which professional peers have reviewed requested material and exercised their best judgments about whether or not a case has been sufficiently made. As communicated to the candidate, however, the reasons for a negative recommendation will be quite general. This is to protect the confidentiality of those who have written about the candidate. It also reflects the fact that the committee is comprised of individuals who may weigh factors of a case differently. Thus, in communicating the reasons for a negative recommendation to the candidate, the committee chair may, for example, specify which area (teaching, scholarship, or service) was of primary concern in the committee's deliberations, and indicate one or several points of concern within that area. The chair of the committee will communicate the reasons orally. If this communication takes the form of a meeting, the candidate and the committee chair may each request a witness. The candidate may subsequently request that these general reasons be confirmed in writing. The candidate should consider that it may not always be to the advantage of the faculty member to be informed of the reasons for non-reappointment, particularly in writing.
 - j. In the case of a negative recommendation from the provost, the candidate may request reasons for that recommendation from the provost, after a 24-hour waiting period. The procedures shall parallel those used by the Rank and Tenure Committee as described above (Section 1.C.2.i). If the candidate requests a reconsideration by both the Rank and Tenure Committee and the provost, these requests should be submitted simultaneously.
 - k. A candidate or the candidate's chair or dean may request in writing that the committee reconsider its decision. The committee is obliged to reopen the case, but is unlikely to change its recommendation unless there is substantial new evidence. If, after reviewing new evidence, there is any change in the committee's recommendation, that change is immediately reported to the president and the provost.
 - l. A candidate or the candidate's chair or dean may request in writing that the provost reconsider their decision. The provost is obliged to reopen the case, but is unlikely to change their recommendation unless there is substantial new evidence. If, after reviewing new evidence, there is any change in the provost's recommendation, that change is immediately reported to the president.
 - m. After reviewing both the committee's recommendations and those of the provost, the president meets with the committee and the provost separately. In any case for which the president is reluctant to accept the committee recommendation or the provost recommendation, an attempt is made to reach consensus. The committee and/or the provost may choose to reconsider their respective recommendations in private or in consultation with each other before resubmitting them to the president. Any change in the committee's recommendation is immediately reported to the candidate, the candidate's chair or dean, and the provost. Any change in the provost's recommendation is immediately reported to the candidate and the candidate's chair or dean.
 - n. Finally, the president decides on each case and forwards both their recommendations and those of the committee and the provost to the Board of Regents. The board makes the ultimate decision to approve or deny tenure.

- o. If tenure is denied, a terminal contract is offered. In exceptional cases, the committee may reconsider its recommendation after such a contract has been signed, but only if such a request is made by both signatories to the contract—the president and the faculty member.

Section 2. CONSIDERATION FOR PROMOTION

A. Initiating Consideration for Promotion

1. The chair or dean normally submits a written nomination to the committee. Tenure candidates are not automatically considered for promotion.
2. Nominations may come from the candidate's chair, dean, faculty colleagues, or the candidate himself.
3. The committee informs each nominee and gives each an opportunity to decline if the nomination seems to that person premature or otherwise inappropriate.

B. Gathering Information and Recommendations for Promotion

1. The procedures parallel those used for tenure cases as described above (Section 1.B.1-8).
2. Faculty members who are candidates for promotion to associate professor during the semester in which they are candidates for tenure submit a single file. The candidate's self-assessment statement in the file must speak to both the criteria for tenure and promotion and the qualifications for the rank of associate professor. On-campus and off-campus referees, as well as faculty in the candidate's department/school are asked to submit separate recommendations for promotion and tenure; however, they may submit a single letter that addresses both tenure and promotion, if they choose. Faculty who are candidates for tenure in one semester and candidates for promotion in another semester may ask that the provost transfer any appropriate material from the tenure file to the promotion file. In cases where a faculty member is a candidate for tenure in one semester and for promotion in another, both on-campus and off-campus referees will be asked to submit new letters for the promotion process.
3. The promotion file, like the tenure file, is available only to the committee, the provost, and the president. Otherwise its contents are strictly confidential.

C. Deliberation on Promotions

1. Throughout its deliberations on promotions, the committee is concerned with these questions:
 - a. Are recommendations and decisions being made with regard both to the general criteria for tenure and promotion and to the specific qualifications for promotion to a particular rank as listed in the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws?
 - b. Is there clear and substantial evidence that the candidate has met these criteria?
 - c. Have recommendations for or against a candidate been based on this kind of evidence?
 - d. Are the standards for promotion to a given rank, including time in service, kept consistent across the university?
2. The committee's deliberations on promotions exactly parallel those for tenure (Section C.2.a-o), except that there is no provision for appeal after the president has submitted their final recommendations, together with the committee's and the provost's, to the Board of Regents. A faculty member can of course be re-nominated in the future.

Section 3. CONSIDERATION OF NON-RETENTION OF NON-TENURED FACULTY

- A. In order to ensure that faculty rights and due process are respected with consistency throughout the university, the committee oversees all cases in which full-time or tenure-eligible faculty are terminated or offered terminal contracts.
 - 1. The provost sends to the committee the names of any faculty members being considered for termination or a terminal contract at least ten days before the deadline for informing that individual. A justified exception occurs when new and decisive information comes to light in the last ten days before the deadline. In all cases, the provost explains in writing the reasons for termination or a terminal contract.
 - 2. The committee considers each such case and decides on a recommendation which is sent to the provost at least five days before the deadline for notifying the individual involved. In some cases, the committee may ask to meet with the provost.
 - 3. If a terminated faculty member appeals, the chair of the committee represents its views in the appeal procedure. In cases where faculty rights or due process seem to be seriously infringed, the committee may decide to initiate an appeal even if the faculty member involved is not so inclined.

Section 4. CONTINUING CONCERNS ABOUT RANK, TENURE, AND RETENTION

- A. The committee believes that decisions about rank and tenure should reflect the collective judgment of the whole faculty. The committee is not merely a bureaucratic device for assembling data, nor should its recommendation be regarded as just one more opinion. Rather the committee strives to represent, through its careful deliberations, the will of the faculty to retain and reward those, and only those, who enhance our community through their excellence. Though the committee's recommendations are not binding, they should carry the weight of the collective voice of the faculty as a whole.
- B. In order to meet this standard, the committee depends on all faculty to respond promptly and thoughtfully to requests for information and recommendations. It also expects administrators to carry out their duties carefully and promptly, including annual evaluations, third-year and other periodic reviews, and comprehensive recommendations.
- C. While one of its functions is to ensure university-wide consistency in standards for promotion and tenure, the committee is aware that there are significant differences in the ways various academic units weigh the relative importance of degrees, publications, community involvement, and other issues. Each academic unit must make explicit what it expects and then apply those expectations consistently in making recommendations. The continuing challenge for the community is to acknowledge those discipline-specific interpretations while maintaining equivalent university-wide criteria.

Section 6. TENURE AND PROMOTION CRITERIA

Those preparing written evaluations of faculty members being considered for tenure or promotion are urged to read carefully the general policies, criteria, and qualifications set forth in the Faculty Bylaws, Article V, Section 1.B. It is understood that any existing departmental or school guidelines that are on file with the committee and are consistent with the Faculty Constitution and Bylaws will also be considered. Qualitative judgments should be supported by specific discussion and documentation wherever possible.

Part X. - OTHER FACULTY POLICIES

Section 1. RECRUITMENT AND SELECTION OF NEW FACULTY

- A. The Office of the Provost publishes guidelines for the recruitment and selection of new faculty. The guidelines are a digest of prevailing practices by the academic units of Pacific Lutheran University, and they include certain mandatory provisions. They are intended to provide guidance for unit heads (both the chairs of departments and the deans of schools and colleges) and faculty search committees in carrying out successful and orderly faculty recruitment and selection. The guidelines are reviewed annually, and are available online (see the websites for the Office of the Provost and Human Resources).
- B. The deans are responsible for implementing these policies and for overseeing effective and timely hiring processes. The university is dedicated to having a diverse, representative, and committed faculty. Special attention will be given to identifying and attracting qualified underrepresented candidates and individuals whose goals, objectives, and academic philosophy are compatible with those of the university. Compliance with federal regulations and PLU policy is obligatory throughout.

Section 2. REDUCTION AND REALLOCATION OF FACULTY POSITIONS

- A. Purpose. The rules and procedures set forth herein are intended to achieve the following ends:
 - 1. To establish and maintain orderly procedures for the reduction or reallocation of tenured faculty positions among various academic units or sub-units if or when the university is faced with financial exigencies or extraordinary circumstances.
 - 2. To provide members of the university faculty with an opportunity to participate in decisions relating to reduction and reallocation in force
 - 3. To provide maximum feasible notice in advance to faculty members who must be terminated from employment at Pacific Lutheran University in connection with a reduction and reallocation in force.
 - 4. To seek further to minimize the distress caused faculty members who may be terminated in connection with a reduction or reallocation by providing assistance in securing re-employment.
- B. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the indicated meaning.
 - 1. "Financial exigency" is a demonstrably bona fide situation in which the university faces an imminent financial crisis which threatens the survival of the institution as a whole and which cannot reasonably be alleviated by less drastic means than those covered in these policies and procedures.
 - 2. "Extraordinary circumstances" shall refer to long-term budgetary issues whose resolution may require the termination of tenured faculty positions
 - 3. "Reductions in force" shall refer to the termination of tenured faculty positions, or a reduction in the number of tenure-line positions, in an academic unit or sub-unit.
 - 4. "Reallocations in force" shall refer to the reallocation of tenured faculty to other academic units or sub-units.

5. "Academic unit" shall refer to a college, school/division, department, or interdisciplinary program.
6. "Academic sub-unit" shall refer to a recognized program of study within an academic unit, which is considered distinct for the purpose of program review.

C. Procedure for the Reduction of Faculty Positions.

1. Initiation of Reduction of Faculty Positions: In the event of demonstrable financial exigency or extraordinary circumstances, either of which may require the reduction or reallocation of tenured faculty positions, the university president, in consultation with the Board of Regents, the provost, and the faculty, shall initiate the reduction and reallocation procedures. Such an initiative shall be accompanied by a written statement of reasons why such action is necessary or appropriate, as well as the approximate cost savings that need to be achieved across the university within a specified time frame. Copies shall be given to all members of the Board of Regents, the provost, and the faculty. The normal right of faculty members to petition the president, or the Board of Regents, shall apply to the initiation of these procedures.
2. The faculty should be informed as early as possible of significant impending financial difficulties. It should participate at all levels of the process in advising and recommending with regard to key decisions as to the future of the institution and of specific academic programs within the university. Faculty action should be effected as outlined elsewhere in this document, and particularly through the establishment and utilization of a Faculty Joint Committee on Reduction and Reallocation in Force. This Faculty Joint Committee shall be composed of the members of the Faculty Affairs Committee, Educational Policies Committee, and Rank and Tenure Committee, acting in concert and electing their own special officers for this joint committee operation.
 - a. Given that the members of the Faculty Joint Committee undertake these responsibilities in addition to the work of the individual committees, committee members may be eligible for appropriate compensation. This may take the form of a course release or a stipend, at a level to be determined in consultation with the provost. If summer committee work is necessary, committee members may be eligible for additional appropriate compensation.
3. The Faculty Joint Committee shall work in ongoing consultation with the provost and the president. The Faculty Joint Committee may also work in consultation with other sectors of the university.
 - a. During their first meeting following the initiation of these procedures, the president, provost, and the Faculty Joint Committee shall determine the precise nature of the challenge and establish guidelines delineating the appropriate processes and responsibilities for the president, provost, and the Faculty Joint Committee. These guidelines shall be recorded in the Faculty Joint Committee's minutes.
4. The provost and Faculty Joint Committee, will request the development of proposals concerning the reduction of faculty positions from each of the university's academic units and sub-units.
5. Each academic unit and sub-unit shall submit a written proposal to the appropriate higher level academic unit(s) of which it is a part for review and for subsequent submission to the Faculty Joint Committee, the provost, and the president. These proposals should address (1) the unit or sub-unit's role in and contributions to the university's educational mission (as defined in the Academic Identity Statement); (2) its current costs and revenue; and (3) recommendations for decreasing the unit or sub-unit's current costs and/or increasing its revenue. Recommendations concerning reductions to faculty positions shall first consider contingent faculty, then regular faculty without tenure, then regular faculty with tenure. Recommendations may also include other avenues by which the unit or sub-unit could decrease its net costs.

6. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall independently review the proposals and prepare separate drafts of written preliminary recommendations. These written preliminary recommendations, including any discontinuance of an academic unit or sub-unit, should take into account, among other things, the unit or sub-unit's role and contributions to the university's educational mission, its current costs and revenue, and any recommendations for decreasing the unit or sub-unit's current costs and/or increasing its revenue. These preliminary recommendations concerning reductions to faculty positions in a given unit or sub-unit shall first consider contingent faculty, then regular faculty without tenure, then regular faculty with tenure. Preliminary recommendations may also include other avenues by which the unit or sub-unit could decrease its net costs.
7. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall review the other's written draft of preliminary recommendations, followed by a discussion of those preliminary recommendations. On the basis of this discussion, the Faculty Joint Committee and/or the provost may revise their preliminary recommendations.
8. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall each report their preliminary recommendations to the president and the faculty.
9. The provost and the Faculty Joint Committee will request a second written proposal from academic units and sub-units identified in the preliminary recommendations for potential elimination or reduction. These second written proposals shall be submitted to the appropriate higher level academic unit(s) of which it is a part for review and for subsequent submission to the Faculty Joint Committee, the provost, and the president.
10. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall independently review the second set of requested proposals and prepare separate drafts of written final recommendations. These recommendations, including any discontinuance of an academic unit or sub-unit, should take into account, among other things, the unit or sub-unit's role and contributions to the university's educational mission, its current costs and revenue, and any recommendations for decreasing the unit or sub-unit's current costs and/or increasing its revenue. Recommendations concerning reductions to faculty positions shall first consider contingent faculty, then regular faculty without tenure, then regular faculty with tenure. Recommendations may also include other avenues by which the unit or sub-unit could decrease its net costs.
11. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall review the other's written draft of final recommendations, followed by a discussion of those recommendations. On the basis of this discussion, the Faculty Joint Committee and/or the provost may decide to revise their recommendations.
12. The Faculty Joint Committee and the provost shall each report their final recommendations to the president and the faculty.
13. After considering all proposals, recommendations, and any other available information, the president or the president's designate shall prepare a written recommendation for presentation to the Board of Regents. In any case in which the president's recommendation differs from those of an academic unit or sub-unit, the provost, or the Faculty Joint Committee the related written materials and information shall be attached to the president's recommendations for consideration by the Board of Regents. Copies of the president's recommendations to the Board of Regents shall be given to the provost and all faculty members.

14. The Board of Regents, exercising legally designated authority, will review the recommendations of the president and all accompanying materials. At the conclusion of its review, the Board of Regents will determine an appropriate course of action.

D. Reallocation/Termination of Faculty Members from Employment.

1. When conditions of financial exigency, other extraordinary circumstances, or the potential elimination or reduction of an academic unit or sub-unit make it reasonably apparent that retrenchment affecting pre-tenure faculty is appropriate, the president, through the Office of the Provost, shall promptly inform the faculty, through their respective academic units and sub-units, of the nature and extent of the situation and shall cause a plan for orderly action to be prepared. The plan shall be developed after consultation with the Faculty Joint Committee and with faculty and administration of all affected academic units and sub-units.
2. In those instances in which it is necessary to reduce tenured faculty positions, the following procedures shall apply:
 - a. If in a given academic unit where a reduction in faculty is to be made it is determined that individual faculty members are not qualified to perform the duties, functions, and responsibilities of any other academic units or sub-units of the university, those individuals with the least retention priority as determined in D.2.d-e will be terminated from the faculty.
 - b. However, in the event a faculty member whose position in a given academic unit or sub-unit is to be eliminated is qualified to teach in another unit or sub-unit of the university, their right to such a position shall be determined in accordance with the criteria in D.2.d-e and with their tenure rights preserved. The qualification of faculty members who have been terminated from positions in their original academic units to teach in other academic units of the university shall be determined by the provost in consultation with the administration and faculty of those academic units to which the faculty member might be transferred; any reallocation must preserve the net reduction approved by the Board of Regents for that academic unit or sub-unit. Normal procedures for determining faculty qualifications will be respected. Typically, these qualifications will refer to, but are not limited to, the expertise represented in the faculty member's terminal degree, teaching, and scholarship, as well as the curricular needs of the academic unit. A faculty member whose position has been terminated and who wishes to remain on the faculty has the responsibility to suggest appropriate areas in which that faculty member might serve.
 - c. In each instance in which it is necessary to distinguish among faculty members who have been determined to be qualified only in academic units or sub-units where the number of qualified faculty members exceeds the remaining positions available, the relative retention priority shall be determined on the basis of criteria in D.2.d-e.
 - d. The following criteria shall be used in determining the relative retention priority of faculty members in those academic units or sub-units in which they are qualified to serve. (Certain exceptions are set forth in D.2.e.)
 - i. Tenured faculty members shall have priority over all untenured faculty members.
 - ii. Among faculty members with tenure, the member with the most points accrued according to the following formula relating seniority and rank shall have the highest retention priority. For service on the faculty of Pacific Lutheran University, a member shall accrue 3 points for each year at the rank of instructor, 4 points for each year at the rank of assistant professor, 5 points for each year at the rank of associate professor, and 6 points for each year at the rank of professor. Service at other institutions shall not be used in this formula. (Years of service for the purposes of this subsection shall be computed in the following manner: years of service shall be measured from the first day of contractual employment as a faculty member holding one of the above ranks at Pacific Lutheran University. It shall include all sabbatical and special leaves granted prior to the adoption of these procedures. After their adoption, it shall be determined at the granting of special leaves of absence whether the leave is to be counted toward years of service.) For faculty members with full-time tenure, a year at rank shall be a contractual year; for faculty members with part-time tenure, a year at rank shall be a full-time-teaching-equivalent year.

- iii. Among tenured faculty members with equal points according to the formula in D.2.d.ii above, the member who has obtained the highest academic degree appropriate to their academic duties at Pacific Lutheran University shall have the greatest retention priority.
- iv. Among tenured faculty members of equal rank/seniority points and equal degree, that faculty member recommended to the Board of Regents by the president of the university, in consultation with the faculty of the appropriate areas, as most essential to the educational mission of the university shall have the greatest retention priority.
- e. In an extraordinary situation in which, as an exception to the above procedures (D.2.d), it is contemplated that a pre-tenure faculty member, or a tenured faculty member with fewer points, might be retained in preference to a tenured faculty member with more points of the same academic unit, in order to meet (i) specific curricular needs or (ii) established institutional priorities related to diversity and inclusion, the president may take such action via a recommendation to the Board of Regents. Before presenting such a recommendation to the Board of Regents, the president will examine the mandatory reviews of the relevant faculty members. Further, they will consult with and request a recommendation from the provost and from the relevant academic administrative unit(s) and their faculty members. Finally, it shall be necessary to secure the approval of the Faculty Joint Committee.

E. Notice of Termination.

- 1. Notice of termination from employment at Pacific Lutheran University in connection with a reduction in force shall be given to affected faculty members by the president in accordance with the guidelines established by the Faculty Bylaws, Article V, Section 1.A.8.
- 2. A faculty member who files an appeal from a notice of termination shall be deemed to have received formal written notice of termination as of the date of receipt of the original notice, and not as of the date of the final decision on the appeal.

F. Hearing and Appeal Procedures.

1. Faculty Committee.

- a. Any tenured faculty member who feels aggrieved by a notice of termination under these procedures shall be entitled to a hearing before the Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee. The request for a hearing must be made within 30 days after receipt of notice of termination. The hearing shall take place within 30 days of the request. The hearing need not conform in all respects with a proceeding conducted pursuant to Article VI, Faculty Constitution and Bylaws, but the essentials of an on-the-record informal adjudicative hearing will be observed. The issues in this hearing may include:
 - i. The existence and extent of the condition of financial exigency. The findings of a faculty committee in a previous proceeding involving the same issue may be introduced.
 - ii. The validity of the educational judgments and the criteria for identification for termination. The recommendations of appropriate faculty bodies on these matters and the plans for retrenchment/reallocation generated according to the procedures of Section C of this document shall be considered presumptively valid.

- b. The Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee shall report its finding and make a recommendation to the president within 15 days after the completion of the hearing.

2. President.

- a. The president shall review the findings of the faculty committee, and after discussing the matter with the aggrieved faculty member, shall recommend action to the board.
- b. Should the faculty member prefer, they may appeal directly to the president without using recourse to the faculty committee process.

3. The Board of Regents. After receiving the president's recommendation, the Board of Regents will discuss the termination with the aggrieved faculty member should the faculty member request it. The Board of Regents will then review the president's recommendation with the president and will either uphold the previous decision or approve a recession.

4. Pre-Tenure Regular Faculty. Should pre-tenure regular faculty feel aggrieved in termination because of retrenchment, they may seek a review by the president or a hearing before a the Formal Dismissal Hearing Committee. The pre-tenure faculty member may, through the Office of the President, appeal the decision to the Board of Regents.

G. Rehiring of Faculty Members.

1. If, subsequent to the issuance of notices of termination to faculty members, but before the effective date of those terminations, it should be determined that it is no longer necessary to carry out some or all of the terminations, the Board of Regents, upon recommendation of the faculty and the administration, will determine which previously reduced academic units or sub-units should be reallocated faculty positions; individual faculty members who received a notice of termination from those academic units or sub-units and are completing their PLU employment will then be offered re-employment, with those individuals having the highest retention priority under the criteria set forth in D.2.d-e being the first to be offered re-employment.
2. Should conditions permit the filling of positions vacated because of financial exigencies or extraordinary circumstances within three years following termination, formerly tenured faculty shall be offered re-employment, with those faculty having greatest retention priority being the first to be offered re-employment. For a period of two years attention also shall be given to the possibility of offering re-employment to pre-tenure faculty who have been terminated in connection with a reduction/reallocation of the type covered in this document.
3. If the university because of financial exigency terminates tenured appointments in certain areas it will not at the same time or within three years make new appointments in those or other substantially related areas without having offered the positions to those formerly tenured Pacific Lutheran University faculty who have been terminated according to these procedures.

Section 3. REDUCTIONS IN LOAD AND PHASED RETIREMENT

A. Reductions in Load

1. Recognizing that reduction in load can significantly facilitate professional growth or otherwise enhance the ability of individual faculty to perform their remaining obligations at an optimal level, and considering that both of the above are in the long-term interest of the university, the faculty has adopted the following policies and procedures.
 - a. A faculty member's teaching load may be reduced to no fewer than two courses (8 semester hours) for full-time faculty, and one course (4 semester hours) for part-time tenure-eligible faculty, distributed over the academic year. The provisions for a regular leave of absence govern release from all teaching responsibilities for one or more semesters.

- b. A faculty member proposing to teach a reduced load for the following academic year or seeking to renew a current reduced load contract shall submit a request in writing to the appropriate unit chair(s) and to the provost. The provost, after consultation with the unit chair(s), has the authority for granting such requests and shall notify the faculty member of their decision in writing, detailing the following:
 - i. the conditions of approval, including:
 - (a.) the reduction in load approved,
 - (b.) the commensurate salary,
 - (c.) the effect on accumulation of time toward tenure, sabbatical leaves, and points for reduction in force,
 - (d.) any adjustments in provision of office space or other accommodations, and
 - (e.) any alterations in tuition remission, or
 - ii. the reasons for denial.
- c. All other benefits for the faculty member shall remain in full except those for which contributions paid by the university are a part of actual salary (social security and retirement).
- d. To facilitate staffing adjustments and enhance their prospects for approval, faculty members are advised to submit their requests in writing by December 15 of the previous year.

B. Phased Retirement

1. Purpose

PLU has adopted this Phased Retirement Policy for the purpose of providing a voluntary early retirement incentive plan that offers eligible faculty and administrators an opportunity to begin a transition from regular employment while remaining an employee of the university. During this transition period, eligible employees electing this option would have a substantially reduced workload, and would receive compensation and benefits as described below. No employee is required to take a phased retirement; this plan is offered as an option to eligible employees as an additional benefit in recognition of extended service on behalf of the university. PLU encourages all personnel to make such personal planning as would best suit each person's individual and/or family needs and has provided this phased retirement option to expand the range of choices available to eligible employees.

- 2. Eligibility for phased retirement is limited by the following criteria, all of which must be satisfied:
 - a. The employee must be either (1) a tenured faculty member or (2) an administrative employee who has either (a) a written employment contract in the year preceding the commencement of phased retirement or (b) who has been otherwise informed in writing that they are eligible for phased retirement.
 - b. The employee must reach a minimum age of 60 in the academic year in which phased retirement begins.
 - c. An otherwise eligible administrative employee must have also completed a minimum of 15 years of service with Pacific Lutheran University at the conclusion of the academic year preceding the year in which phased retirement begins AND must have held an administrator position (exempt status) prior to December 31, 2002.
 - d. The employee's employment with PLU must have begun on or before December 31, 1996.
 - e. NOTE: ALL EMPLOYEES HIRED ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1997, ARE NOT ELIGIBLE FOR PHASED RETIREMENT.

3. Benefits

- a. Eligible employees selecting phased retirement before the “Normal Retirement Age” as defined in the Pacific Lutheran University 403(b) Retirement Plan (“the PLU retirement plan”) (age 65 as of 1997) may receive income payments equal to one-fifth of the employee’s base salary in the academic year immediately preceding the phased retirement for up to five succeeding years. Eligible employees may request that the income payment period be reduced from five years and, in such circumstances, PLU may, in its discretion, leave the income payment at one-fifth of the last base year salary or may agree to adjust the income payment to reflect the number of years of the income payment period.
- b. Eligible employees who are at or past the “Normal Retirement Age” defined in the PLU retirement plan may also elect a phased retirement, provided, however, that the time period over which income payments may be spread shall not in any circumstances extend beyond the last date on which an income payment would have been received had such employee selected phased retirement before the “Normal Retirement Age” defined in the PLU retirement plan and, provided further, that there must be at least two years over which the transition to retirement will occur and the income payments will be spread as a part of phased retirement. Note: Eligible employees who are over the “Normal Retirement Age” at the time this policy is enacted or exempt from the latter of these two restrictions.
- c. During the years of phased retirement in which an eligible employee is receiving an income payment, most benefits available to regular employees of the university will continue to be available at whatever costs are applicable during any given year. Those benefits include medical insurance, dental program, life insurance, and tuition remission. The university reserves the right to alter or adjust benefits based on the requirements of state and/or local federal laws or budgetary considerations.
- d. In the event that a person participating in this program becomes eligible for group medical, dental, and life insurance benefits from another source, whether through employment or otherwise, PLU reserves the right to discontinue any such benefit. Any person who becomes eligible for health and/or dental insurance benefits pursuant to Medicare, shall utilize such benefits and benefits pursuant to Medicare shall be primary and benefits provided by PLU shall be secondary.
- e. During the period in which a person is receiving income payments in connection with Phased Retirement, that person agrees to be reasonably available to PLU to respond to such questions or address issues which may arise out of the services provided to or courses taught at PLU, to provide specific project by project services to PLU, and to perform special short-term duties such as academic advising, policy or program research, and/or fundraising. Such duties shall not exceed one-fifth of the normal faculty workload and shall be determined after consultation with the applicable department. They could, but would not normally, be understood to include regular teaching or committee assignments.
- f. In the event of the death of a faculty member participating in phased retirement and receiving income continuation payments, the income continuation will be paid through the date of death and an additional amount equal to one-twelfth of such eligible employee’s base salary in the year immediately preceding phased retirement will also be paid.
- g. The employment status, tenure status, and all other rights of employment will automatically end for all eligible employees selecting phased retirement as of the date the last income payment is made to such eligible employee. Thereafter, such eligible employee shall hold the status of a retiree.

4. Procedure

- a. Eligible employees electing a phased retirement must submit a written request no later than December 15 of the academic year before which phased retirement is commenced. Faculty should submit such request to the provost and administrators shall submit such request to the applicable university official. Copies of all requests shall be submitted to PLU's Human Resources Department and, for eligible faculty members, to the appropriate unit chair.

- b. Any eligible employee seeking an income continuation period of less than five years shall include the duration of such period in the request for phased retirement submitted pursuant to subparagraph a.
- c. Faculty requesting to work a reduced load during the phased retirement period shall include the proposed reduced load specifying courses to be taught for the duration of the reduced load period with the request submitted pursuant to subparagraph a.
- d. NOTE: THIS PHASED RETIREMENT POLICY REPLACES AND SUPERSEDES ANY PRIOR POLICY, PROGRAM OR PLAN FOR EARLY OR PHRASED RETIREMENT, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, THE PHASED RETIREMENT PROGRAM SET FORTH ON PAGES 141 AND 142 OF THE 1995 FACULTY HANDBOOK.

Section 4. SABBATICAL, REGULAR, AND SPECIAL LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Sabbatical leaves and regular and special leaves of absence from the university are considered to be highly desirable, both for the faculty and for the university, and, in fact, are absolutely essential if the university is to maintain the highest quality of instruction. Such leaves encourage and nurture faculty improvement through study, research, writing, contact with faculty outside our university community, and other forms of productive scholarly activity. Utilization of leaves and other means available for growth should be the professional responsibility of all faculty. Because of the importance of utilizing these opportunities, the university may at times request a faculty member to accept a sabbatical leave (or special leave of absence at regular salary).

A. Sabbatical Leaves

1. Tenured full-time members of the faculty are eligible for sabbatical leave after each completion of a minimum period of six years of full-time faculty service (excluding years of leave). Tenured part-time faculty are eligible after completion of a minimum period of six years of faculty service. The eligibility period begins with the year of one's most recent appointment to the faculty or with the year following one's last sabbatical. Excess years of service preceding last sabbatical cannot be applied toward eligibility for a later sabbatical when it is the faculty member who elects to defer sabbatical. However, in cases in which the provost, in consultation with the dean, chair, and concerned faculty member, determines that it is in the best interest of the university for the sabbatical to be deferred, the faculty member's original schedule of eligibility for subsequent sabbaticals should be maintained whenever possible. Tenure-track faculty members who come to the university with no credit toward tenure are eligible to apply for sabbatical leave in their sixth year of employment even though they have not yet received notification of approval of their application for tenure.
2. Sabbatical recipients will receive 75% of their base salary for the duration of their leaves, either half-year or full-year. For full-time faculty, the base salary is the full regular salary one would have received had one not gone on sabbatical; for part-time faculty, the base salary is to be determined by averaging the fractional levels of appointment for the six most recent years. By scheduling half of a regular year's teaching responsibilities for one semester, an applicant can ask to be relieved of January term teaching as well as either the spring or fall semester teaching.

3. Recipients of either half-year or full-year sabbaticals will receive all fringe benefits for which they would ordinarily be eligible. University contributions will be at the same level as if the recipient had remained in their regular faculty role. Retirement and social security contributions are based on salary actually received and, therefore, would be reduced in proportion to any salary reduction. Other fringe benefits will be paid in full.
4. Salary and fringe benefits provided a faculty member on sabbatical will not have to be repaid should the faculty member not return to the university on completion of the sabbatical.
5. Faculty members who are eligible for sabbatical and wish to request the opportunity must ordinarily file initial application, which includes a description of the intended activities, with the provost no later than December 15th of the second year preceding the school year during which the sabbatical is desired. Copies of the application should be submitted to one's departmental chair and divisional or school dean. The provost, in light of the criteria listed in Section D, and of recommendations of the other academic administrators involved and of the Faculty Committee on Rank and Tenure, will issue provisional approval or will defer or deny the request. In the case of a denial, appeal may be made to the president.
6. By October 15th of the year preceding the requested sabbatical, those faculty members who received provisional approval should provide the above administrators with as nearly finalized plans for the requested sabbatical as possible. Recommendations for or against final approval will then be made by the provost to the president. Those sabbatical requests approved by the president will then be reported to the Board of Regents for final action. If sabbatical plans are changed significantly from those reported to the board, reapproval by the provost and president must be obtained.

B. Regular Leave of Absence

1. Any full-time or tenure-eligible members of the faculty may request from their academic administrators the opportunity of a leave of absence at any time. The selection criteria are given in Section D.
2. Faculty members receiving a leave of absence will not receive a salary but will ordinarily receive the fringe benefits to which they would otherwise be eligible as specified in Section A.3. This means that ordinarily neither retirement program nor social security contributions will be paid, but where a case for such contributions, in part or in full, can be made such provision is open to negotiation. Any fringe benefits awarded to an untenured faculty member on leave will have to be repaid should the faculty member not return to active service at the university upon completion of the leave.
3. Ordinarily a leave of absence will not be awarded for more than one consecutive calendar year.

C. Special Leave of Absence

1. Special leaves of absence are like sabbatical leaves except that there is no set minimum period of service to the university required to establish eligibility. Ordinarily this type of leave will be reserved for faculty members whom the university wishes to help toward completion of an advanced degree or acquisition of an alternative educational background of special value to the university. The selection criteria are given in Section D.
2. The salary and fringe benefits awarded the recipient of a special leave will have to be repaid to the university unless the recipient returns to full-time service following the leave and maintains this status for a minimum of two years (or less, at the discretion of the university).
3. Faculty members may combine their request for provisional and final approval for a special leave of absence by filing it by October 15th of the year preceding the requested leave year.
4. Less than full salary for a one-semester special leave or less than half salary for a full-year special leave may be granted in circumstances in which the special leave is warranted but funds are inadequate.

D. Criteria for Selection of Faculty for Leaves

1. The academic administration, in considering requests for leaves, should be guided by the following criteria:
 - a. In the case of sabbaticals, completion of additional years of service completed beyond the required minimum (specified in Section A.1) will give one priority over applicants who have completed fewer years of eligibility-earning service.
 - b. Rate and nature of change of the applicant's discipline and/or teaching area.
 - c. Appropriateness of timing for the university.
 - d. Appropriateness of timing for the individual (specific reason why leave should be taken during a certain year should be presented if this consideration is to apply).
 - e. Likelihood of leave leading to an advanced degree or area of expertise of particular benefit to the university.
 - f. Adequacy of applicant's use of past opportunities for conducting scholarly activity.

E. Reporting

1. Faculty members on leaves of any kind shall submit an activity report to their chair and dean, as well as the president and provost on completion of the leave. The activities report is due within one month of return from leave. A template for the post-leave activity report will be provided by the Office of the Provost.
2. Faculty returning from a sabbatical shall submit an abstract of no more than 250 words that summarizes their activities report to the provost within one month of return from leave. These abstracts will be presented to the Board of Regents.

F. Written Agreement

For each leave of absence of any type, all variable terms of leaves of that type shall be agreed upon at the time the leave is granted. In particular, the post-leave status of any untenured faculty member in terms of years of tenure probationary period met shall be specified.

G. Budget Consideration

1. The amount designated annually by the university for support of its leave program should normally equal at least 2% of the total instructional budget.
2. In order to encourage development of professional skills and provide opportunities for professional growth, administrators without faculty status may be recommended by the president for special leaves on the basis of individual needs.

Section 5. POLICY GUIDELINES FOR VISITING SCHOLAR APPOINTMENTS

- A. Title: Visiting Scholar
- B. Qualifications: appropriate combination of degree and/or experience as determined by those initiating the offer.
- C. Initiating the Offer: there must be:
- D. An individual sponsor — a member of the faculty or administrative staff; a department or program connection — signature of chair required; unit endorsement — signature of dean required.
- E. Offers should be coordinated by the Wang Center for Global and Community Engaged Education (where international visiting scholars' arrangements currently are coordinated).

- F. Obligations of the Host: The initiating trio is responsible for hosting the visitor (international visitors in particular may need assistance with housing or other living arrangements). The Wang Center for Global and Community Engaged Education often is part of the initiating trio for existing formal exchange programs, but should not be expected to assume the responsibilities of “host” simply because they are the office coordinating/tracking all the visiting scholars on campus.
- G. There should be a letter of “affiliation” from the provost. The letter should identify benefits and expectations, should specify the term of the affiliation, should note whether the term can be extended, and that either party can terminate the affiliation, specifically addressing that in the event that PLU wishes to terminate the affiliation, PLU is not responsible for the visiting scholar’s travel expenses.
- H. Obligations of the Visiting Scholar: negotiated on an individual basis and identified in the letter of appointment. In general, there is an expectation of involvement in the campus community to the benefit of students and faculty (guest lectures, appearances in classes, special events with student groups, act as resource contact person for faculty and students, etc.). Further, visiting scholars are expected to uphold the same policies and standards of conduct as other faculty on campus.
- I. Prerequisites of the position: The visiting scholar will receive a PLU identification card (and access to the library, campus events, and a PLU email account), office space if available and endorsed by the sponsoring trio, and institutional affiliation (use of letterhead, etc.).
- J. Other Benefits: If the individual is part of a formal exchange program, these depend on the specific program (see Wang Center for Global and Community Engaged Education). If the individual is not part of a formal program, then the initiating trio must support any other appropriate benefits. If university resources beyond the budgets of the initiating trio are to be committed to a visiting scholar, then the provost must agree in writing.
- K. NOTE: VISITING SCHOLARS ARE NOT PLU EMPLOYEES AND DO NOT RECEIVE COMPENSATION OR BENEFITS FROM PLU. THEY MAY BECOME EMPLOYEES (PART-TIME FACULTY, ETC.), BUT SUCH EMPLOYMENT IS SUBJECT TO NORMAL HIRING PROCEDURES AND AN EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT WILL BE ISSUED.

Section 6. POLICY ON ENDOWED CHAIRS AND PROFESSORS

A. Background and Purpose

- 1. Endowed faculty positions are created to advance the mission of the university, to attract and retain faculty of distinction, to honor donors, and to enrich programs. These positions provide enhanced support for distinguished faculty, enabling greater contributions to the university, the community, and human knowledge through teaching, scholarship, and service.
- 2. This policy offers guidelines for the establishment, appointment, and review of endowed positions at Pacific Lutheran University. It does not replace any other policies and procedures governing employment at PLU. In particular, all existing policies concerning hiring, tenure, promotion, and faculty review must be followed and take precedence if there is any perceived conflict.

B. Funding requirements

- 1. An endowed position is a faculty appointment supported by income from an endowment created for such a purpose. These are dedicated faculty positions focused on a particular area of scholarship and/or teaching. Such appointments may be made at two levels:

- a. Endowed Chair: Endowment income must be sufficient to completely cover the base salary and benefits of a full-time, continuing associate professor or professor, as well as an appropriate level of additional support, consistent with the terms of this policy.
- b. Endowed Professor: Endowment income must be sufficient to cover half the base salary and benefits of a full-time, continuing associate professor or professor, as well as an appropriate level of additional support, consistent with the terms of this policy.
2. Prior to establishing any endowed position, at least 50% of the required funds will generally be “in hand,” along with legally binding commitments for the remainder.
3. In the event there are insufficient gifts to fund the position fully at the time of its establishment, the Endowed Position Agreement (see Section 3, below) should contain:
 - a. provisions for alternative uses for the funds raised; or
 - b. commitment by the president to fund any deficiency from the general fund.
4. No final commitment establishing an endowed position shall be made to a prospective donor prior to approval by the president, the provost, and the relevant academic leader(s).
5. The primary criterion governing the establishment of an endowed position is that it advances the mission and strategic agenda of the university.

C. Endowed Position Agreement

Each endowed position shall be governed by an Endowed Position Agreement developed and agreed upon by the president, provost, academic leader(s), and donor(s). The Endowed Position Agreement shall specify:

1. The name of the endowed position;
 2. The purposes and objectives of the endowed position and the ways it will advance the mission and strategic agenda of the university;
 3. The field(s), discipline(s), or specialization(s) in which the appointment may be made;
 4. The academic unit (department, program, school, or division) within which the endowed position will be housed;
 5. The academic leader(s) who will oversee the position. Generally, this will be the dean in the case of a professional school and the chair and dean in the case of a department or program within the College of Arts and Sciences. In the event of a position endowed in multiple academic units, the Endowed Position Agreement should specify how oversight responsibilities will be shared by multiple chairs and deans as applicable.
 6. The budgetary guidelines and relevant signatory authority for funds included in the endowment;
 7. Minimum qualifications for faculty appointed to the position;
 8. The expectations for appointed faculty, including conditions for reappointment if appropriate;
 9. Guidelines for review of faculty holding the position, including standards to which they will be held and guidelines for the provost and the department, program, division, and/or school that will conduct reviews;
 10. Provisions to fund contingent faculty or new hires to fill courses if the endowed position removes teaching responsibilities from existing faculty lines;
 11. Other terms unique to the appointment, to be developed jointly by the donor(s), president, provost, and academic leader(s);
 12. Provision for alternative distribution of the income from the endowment should the subject area of the endowed chair cease to be consistent with the university’s mission or its academic plan.
- This alternative distribution shall be as closely related to the donor’s original intent as is feasible.

D. Definitions & Appointment Processes

1. Endowed positions can exist in three distinct categories, which are defined based on their appointment process and term as follows:

- a. Endowed Distinguished Positions: Chairs or professorships that are appointed after a national search—to which PLU faculty are entitled to apply—run by the academic unit named in the Academic Position Agreement. Endowed Distinguished Chairs and Professors are appointed to indefinitely renewable terms in their endowed position, subject to review at least every five years.
 - b. Endowed Honorary Positions: Chairs or professorships that are appointed from within PLU's faculty after an internal search run by the academic unit named in the Endowed Position Agreement. Endowed Honorary Chairs and Professors are appointed to one or two terms of up to five years each.
 - c. Endowed Visiting Positions: Chairs or professorships that bring a continuing stream of scholars, creative artists, and practicing professionals to the university for a short period of time, usually no longer than two years. Endowed Visiting Chairs and Professors are appointed from outside of PLU's faculty in consultation with the academic unit named in the Endowed Position Agreement.
2. The term of appointment to an endowed distinguished or endowed honorary position is entirely distinct from a faculty member's rank and tenure. Appointment to these non-visiting endowed positions is only possible if the appointee has been or will be hired as a faculty member, and appointed persons must go through the same tenure process as all other faculty. Termination or dismissal from a regular faculty position automatically removes an appointed faculty member from the endowed position. Removal and/or conclusion of an endowed position do not change a faculty member's rank or tenure status.
 3. The category in which an endowed position will be placed is determined by academic unit in which the position is housed, in consultation with the provost.
 4. The category of an endowed position may be changed at the conclusion of a position-holder's term if the provost accepts the recommendation for such a change from the relevant academic leader(s).
 5. All searches for endowed chairs and professorships should follow the regular and published faculty search procedures of the university and the relevant division or school, except as detailed below:
 - a. The selection criteria shall be consistent with the stated purposes, objectives, and restrictions established in the Endowed Position Agreement;
 - b. Commensurate with the honor accorded such positions, the minimum rank shall be at the Associate Professor rank or its equivalent for visiting professors unless otherwise specified in the Endowed Position Agreement.
 6. Donors do not participate in the hiring process.
- E. Terms of Appointment
1. Occupants of endowed positions shall be given an appointment letter specifying the conditions of their appointment consistent with the Endowed Position Agreement. The appointment letter shall include:
 - a. The term and renewability of the appointment;
 - b. Base salary and benefits, which will normally be commensurate with existing faculty compensation levels;
 - c. Supplemental salary, which should be awarded in accordance with the honor and the expectations of the endowed position;
 - d. Expectations for service to the university, the community, and/or for scholarship. Such expectations, which are normally above and beyond those placed on other faculty, should be matched by support from the endowment income for travel, student or staff administrative

- support, library acquisitions, or other expenses necessary to support the position.
- e. Teaching load, which is normally one half to two thirds of the regular faculty load in recognition of enhanced expectations for service and/or scholarship.
- f. Any other conditions as specified in the Endowed Position Agreement.

2. The occupant of the endowed position shall be entitled to the normal support funds and services generally available to all other members of the faculty, including adequate space for teaching and research. Such support funds will not generally be charged to the endowment income associated with the position.
3. Appointment to an endowed position is separate from appointment to the faculty. A decision to award tenure to either a current or prospective appointee follows the regular policies for such decisions. Tenure applies only to the regular faculty appointment; it does not imply continuation in the endowed position.
4. Appointment to an endowed position ends at the conclusion of a non-renewed term, upon the entrance of the appointee into retirement or phased retirement, or upon the termination or death of the appointee.
5. An appointee to an endowed chair or endowed professor position may elect to discontinue appointment prior to the end of the current term, returning to regular faculty status, provided notice is given to academic leader(s) and the provost no less than one year prior.

F. Review Process

1. Endowed chairs and professors will be reviewed as regular faculty for their teaching, scholarship, and service. In addition, they will be regularly reviewed by their academic leader(s) and the provost regarding their fulfillment of the terms of their appointment letter. Academic leader(s) may request that these reviews be combined or separated as long as both occur regularly.
2. At the end of each academic year, the appointee shall prepare an addendum to their Faculty Activity Report and Self-Assessment detailing accomplishments and challenges specific to the endowed position. The academic leader(s), consulting as appropriate with other members of the appointee's academic unit, shall review and respond to the annual report.
3. Unless otherwise stated in the Endowed Position Agreement or agreed upon by the appointee and their dean, every occupant of an endowed chair or professorship will undergo review by their academic unit and by the provost every five years. Procedures for such reviews will normally be as follows:
 - a. By November 15th of the last year of an appointee's term, the appointee will submit to their academic leader(s) a review covering the years since the previous appointment. This review will include a comprehensive self-assessment with respect to the expectations of the Endowed Position Agreement and appointment letter;
 - b. By December 1st, the academic leader(s) will write a performance review based on the report, consulting as appropriate with other members of the appointee's academic unit. This review will include a recommendation for or against renewal, and will be shared and discussed with the faculty member prior to its release to the Office of the Provost. The faculty member will have the right to include an addendum if they desire;
 - c. The faculty report, the performance review, and the faculty addendum to that review (if desired) will be submitted to the provost by December 15th;
 - d. By February 1st, the provost will notify the faculty member by letter whether their appointment has been renewed. Final authority for removal of the appointee rests with the provost. Copies of the letter shall be sent to the chair and/or dean.
4. All appointments should be subject to renewal at least every five years.
5. Donors do not participate in the review process.

SECTION V: SPECIAL INSTITUTIONAL POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

Part I. - COPYRIGHT LAW AND EDUCATIONAL FAIR USE

Section 1. BACKGROUND

- A. Copyright law, current thinking and practice related to intellectual property rights, and even local computer use policies are constantly changing. Given this swirl of law, practice, and policy, engaging in scholarly or instructional activity while maintaining academic integrity and respecting the property of others can be quite a challenge, indeed.
- B. An exhaustive statement on copyright law is not possible here, so some general concepts and rules of thumb are presented instead.
- C. Much of the material below is drawn from the following sources, which can also serve as resources for elaboration and up-to-date information:
 - 1. "The Library of Congress-U.S. Copyright Office," at <https://www.copyright.gov/>
 - 2. Stanford University Library's "Copyright and Fair Use" website, at <https://fairuse.stanford.edu/>
 - 3. Pacific Lutheran University policies and procedures, at
 - 4. <https://www.plu.edu/helpdesk/> (computer use policy)

 - 6. <https://www.plu.edu/library/> (from library page, navigate to course reserves section)
 - 7. Copyright Clearance Center, at <http://www.copyright.com/> Section

Section 2. GENERAL CONCEPTS

- A. Intellectual property laws generally hold that works created by individuals are protected for the life of the author plus 70 years. Commissioned or hired work may be copyrighted for 95 years after initial publication or 120 years after the date of creation, whichever is shorter. Material not protected by copyright law includes works that lack originality (e.g., a phone book), U.S. government publications, facts, and other items in the public domain.
- B. Fair use is for the most part a set of guidelines that attempt to implement various legal provisions for limited use of protected intellectual property without permission of the author or creator. "Educational fair use" encompasses the reproduction of protected works for classroom and other educational uses. Generally speaking, all material may be cited and quoted with attribution, but only limited portions of an article or book may be reproduced without permission. Just how much of a work may be reproduced under the aegis of educational fair use is a major area of contention. Up to one chapter from a book and up to one article from a journal issue seems to be a cautious, legally conservative limit.
- C. Factors for gauging fair use, as established in recent legal proceedings, include a) purpose and character of the use, b) the nature of the copyrighted work, c) the amount and substantiality of the portion used, and d) the effect of the use on the potential market for the work or value of the work.

- D. Individual liability for infringement of copyright is well established in the law. Faculty are responsible for their own actions under the law and should not assume they are less vulnerable than the university, or that the university is a shield of some sort.

Section 3. SOME RULES OF THUMB

- A. Photocopying seems to be very safe ground at no more than one article from a journal issue and no more than one chapter from a book. More than these amounts becomes progressively tenuous.
- B. Coursepacks have become a battleground for publishers and educators over the principles of educational fair use and application of the factors for fair use, especially effect on markets. Production of a coursepack without copyright clearance for all copyrighted material is risky business these days.
- C. Digitizing a printed article, chapter, or image remains a murky area. Publishers do not like it because, they claim, it goes beyond usual fair use by changing to a format that more readily affects potential market through easy electronic distribution and unlimited duplication. Limited access and duration of availability seem to be circumstances tolerable to many publishers, circumstances that are offered by the university's electronic course reserves service.

Section 4. COURSE RESERVES AT PLU

Procedures for arranging both print and electronic course reserves, additional information on copyright law and guidelines, and aids for acquiring copyright clearance when needed are available at the PLU course reserves web pages. Part II. - FAMILY EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS AND PRIVACY ACT OF 1974 (FERPA)

Section 1.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, popularly known as the “Buckley Amendment” and carrying the acronym FERPA, governs the university’s collection, retention, and dissemination of information about students. FERPA accords students five rights:

- A. The right to inspect and review education records;
- B. The right to seek the amendment of education records;
- C. The right to consent to the disclosure of education records;
- D. The right to obtain a copy of the school’s FERPA policy; and
- E. The right to file a complaint with the FERPA Office in Washington, D.C. (Now known as the Family Policy Compliance Office).
- F. All faculty are required by law to follow these Federal guidelines. The policy appears on the Student Handbook website for review.

Part III. - APPLYING FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL FUNDING

PLU encourages faculty to apply for grants, fellowships, and other funding sources that support professional development. This funding can augment existing programs, create new programmatic activities, bolster institutional capacity, and foster faculty-student scholarship and other types of professional development.

The number and size of Quigg Awards will vary each year and there may be years when no awards are granted. The president of the university may make special discretionary disbursements from the award fund in support of extraordinary accomplishment or need that falls outside of the annual award competition.
3. Eligibility: Any faculty, staff, or student and any campus organization or group may be nominated or may apply.
4. For further details, see the website for the Office of the President's (www.plu.edu/president/carol-sheffels-quigg-awards/).

2. Criteria: These grants are intended to aid the faculty member whose spur-of-the-moment idea or out-of-the-ordinary method promises improved instruction for a specific class or series of classes. Proposals are considered when funds are not otherwise available from departmental, school, or college sources. Furthermore, funds from this source are not for the purpose of providing normal operating services, such as photocopying or administrative work. Nor are they generally intended for the purchase of instructional equipment, nor for the continuation of programs which are currently in place.
3. Eligibility: All tenured and tenure-track faculty are eligible, as are visiting, resident, and clinical faculty.
4. For further details, see the website for the Office of the Provost (www.plu.edu/provost/documents/file-group/awards-grants/).

 - c. The project advances the applicant's professional growth, the "cutting edge" of the applicant's discipline, and/or the enhancement of the applicant's departmental curriculum or quality of classroom instruction.
 - d. Priority consideration shall be given to qualified projects for which external funding is unlikely. Faculty members are, however, encouraged to articulate how they have and will leverage funding.
 - e. All else being equal,
 - i. Only the intrinsic merit of a project or activity, not its total costs, shall be primary and decisive.
 - ii. Proposals from tenure-track and tenured faculty are favored over those of contingent faculty.
 - iii. Proposals from tenure-track faculty are favored over those of tenured faculty.
 - iv. Proposals from faculty who have not recently received a Karen Hille Phillips Regency Advancement Award are favored over those who have received an award recently.
 - f. Projects related to sabbatical leave proposals shall not be excluded from consideration on that account, but shall have secondary priority in competition—all else being equal. Faculty who will be on sabbatical are not eligible to receive a stipend for the summer prior to the year during which they will be on sabbatical leave.
 - g. More specific criteria may be developed and applied by the dean or faculty of a given school or college.
3. Eligibility: All members of the faculty, as defined by the Faculty Constitution (Article I, Section 1), are eligible.

Section 2. EXTERNAL FUNDING

A. Grant Application Procedures

1. In order to facilitate the process, assist in proposal preparation, and to coordinate efforts, it is recommended that early in the formation of the proposal, the author explore the idea with the dean, department chair, colleagues, and the Office of the Provost. Shortly thereafter, one should contact the Office of Advancement and talk with the grants representative. In cases where the proposal has a large, programmatic reach of the grant is broad, and/or if matching funds from PLU will be requested, it is especially important to begin conversations with the department chair, dean, and the Offices of Advancement, Provost, and Finance and Administration early in the process of developing the proposal. To aid in that dialogue, applicants should complete the form, "Notice of Intent to Apply for a Grant," that helps the author address critical components such as deadlines, matching requirements, and grant implications. At least one week before final submission, a "Grant Approval Form" should be completed. This is an important document that PLU will use once the grant has been awarded to delineate the financial responsibilities and obligations. Both of these forms are available from the website for the Office of the Provost. Obtaining the requisite signatures assures that all relevant officials are cognizant of the grant proposal.
2. Once a proposal is complete and ready to submit, copies must be sent to the Office of Advancement and to the Office of the Provost, and one copy must be retained by the applicant. The Office of Advancement tracks grant applications, so it is most helpful if applicants notify them as to the outcome of the proposal and send to them copies of any acceptance or declination letters. Generally speaking, agencies award the funds with a check that is mailed to the Office of Advancement. Successful applicants need to coordinate with the Office of the Provost to assure that an account number and budget have been established with the Business Office. Doing so promptly enables the Office of Advancement to deposit the funds in the appropriate account.

Part IV. - INCLUSIVE LANGUAGE

- A. PLU supports the efforts of faculty, students, staff, and administrators to employ and augment the inclusive language guidelines of their professions or disciplines, and to reflect upon the cultural conditions which have made such guidelines integral to contemporary language use.
- B. General ELCA guidelines suggest that inclusive language avoid stereotypes and biases and not alienate, demean, or misrepresent persons based on gender, race, physical or mental ability, sexual orientation, class, nationality, religion, family, age, or status.
- C. PLU promotes the use of language that includes and affirms groups that have often been misrepresented in or left out of discourse, directs our attention to the nuances of social reference, and calls us to address all individuals with respect.

Part V. - POLICY FOR DEALING WITH AND REPORTING POSSIBLE MISCONDUCT IN SCIENCE

Section 1.

- A. Pacific Lutheran University has the responsibility to initiate inquiry and investigation into situations in which there is allegation of misconduct in scientific research carried out at this university in order to determine the veracity of the allegations and to report the proceedings and conclusions drawn from such inquiries and investigations to governmental and other agencies providing funding for the research. According to Rule 42 CFR Part 50 of the Public Health Service Act, misconduct in science is fabrication, falsification, plagiarism, deception, or other practices that seriously deviate from those that are commonly accepted within the scientific community for proposing, conducting, or reporting research; or material failure to comply with federal requirements that uniquely relate to the conduct of research. It does not include honest error or honest differences in interpretations or judgments of data (42 CFR § 50.102).
- B. The procedures of Pacific Lutheran University for conducting such inquiry and investigation shall be according to the Rule of the Public Health Service Act contained in 42 CFR Part 50 with respect to timeliness of the inquiry and investigation processes, protection of privacy of both the persons bringing the allegations and the affected individual(s), and the reporting of such deliberations to the appropriate governmental or private agencies, e.g., the Office of Scientific Integrity for any research or related activities supported by the National Institutes of Health.
- C. In addition to the specific requirements of the Public Health Service Act Rules, the following procedures should be followed:
 - 1. Inquiry may be initiated by written request from the person(s) bringing the allegation to the Office of the Provost.
 - 2. At the request of the provost, the inquiry shall be carried out by the Rank and Tenure Committee of the faculty with appropriate procedures to respect the privacy of all individuals concerned as are normally applied to matters of faculty rank and tenure and in accordance with Public Health Service Rule 42 CFR§ 50.103.
 - 3. If it is considered necessary as a result of the inquiry for full investigation to be made, the investigation shall be carried out according to Article VI, Section 2 of the Faculty Constitution and By-laws, Disciplinary and Dismissal Procedures, with the following exceptions:
 - a. Subsection d.(2).ix: The hearing is with respect to charges of scientific misconduct rather than incompetence.
 - b. Subsection d.(2).xiii: Dismissal is not assumed to be at issue with respect to the outcome of the investigation; recommendations of penalties or consequences shall be determined as appropriate to the seriousness and scope of the misconduct.
 - 4. The investigatory hearing shall comply with the above Public Health Service Act Rule Sections 50.103 and 50.104 with respect to specific requests for notification and reporting and for due process.
 - 5. The affected individual may petition for redress if they have cause for grievance in the event that the procedures and rules cited or described above have not been followed.

6. A complete copy of the policy statement and the Public Health Service Rule shall be made available by the Office of the Provost to any faculty member or other university-employed scientific investigator upon request.

Part VI. - POLICY ON POLITICAL ACTIVITIES

- A. University facilities shall not be made available for purely political speeches. Organized student political groups may sponsor political figures on campus, provided that the activities are limited to institutional audiences and that the general public is not invited. Official organizations of the university may invite political figures to the campus for educational and lecture purposes only. Partisan campaigning on the campus is precluded.
- B. Personal or political mail not involving university business must be sent first class if it is to be distributed in individual mailboxes. With appropriate approval, materials may be distributed personally in various areas, such as a designated display area in the University Center. All university facilities, including materials, are to be paid for personally. University stationery and envelopes are not to be used for private matters.

Part VII. - POLICY ON RELIGIOUS GROUPS

Pacific Lutheran University . . .

- A. understands and identifies itself as a Christian university in view of its Lutheran heritage, ownership and governance, mission, and educational philosophy.
- B. formalizes this identity as a Lutheran—and so, Christian—university in part through the provision of regular opportunities for worship (University Chapel and the University Congregation) and through the support of campus ministry staffed by Lutheran clergy (Campus Ministry Office).
- C. actively encourages the Christian faith and life of students, staff, and faculty while recognizing the diversity of Christian denominations and traditions represented within the university community.
- D. values the presence of those from other faith traditions, and also those who belong to no faith tradition, acknowledging the benefits within an educational institution of pluralism of ideas and commitments.
- E. provides for the academic study of Christianity and other religious traditions through the course offerings of its Religion Department.
- F. allows for members of the university community to organize recognized religious clubs whose activities are consistent with the university's educational objectives.
- G. retains the right to restrict and/or prohibit those religious groups whose activities originate outside of the university, conflict with the educational objectives of the university, or violate established university policies or procedures (for example, active, coercive, or confrontational proselytizing on campus, excessive use of university bulletin boards, or the excessive influence of off-campus organizations).

Part VIII. - SPEAKER POLICY

- A. Pacific Lutheran University endorses the principle that by definition it is a place of free inquiry. In accordance with this principle, any recognized university organization shall be allowed to invite any person of its choosing. Effort should be made to inform the academic and larger community that such sponsorship of a guest speaker does not necessarily imply approval of the views expressed or endorsement of them by either the sponsoring group or the university.
- B. Routine scheduling procedures required by the university must be followed before completing arrangements for any speaker. Availability of suitable space for the event which does not conflict with the university's regularly scheduled program will be the only factor considered in approving a proposed meeting, but it shall be required that the audience be given an opportunity to question speakers at the conclusion of their presentations. This latter requirement may be waived only by the director of the University Center or by appeal to the president. Either of these persons may also require:
 - 1. The appointment of an approved moderator for the event with authority to close the meeting if, in their judgment, it becomes disorderly or disruptive.
 - 2. The restriction of the audience to members of the campus community or to members of a specific organization only.
