

Syllabus Statements for Courses with In-Person Elements Summer Term II 2020

In addition to the usual set of recommended syllabi statements (see here), the Educational Policies Committee, Academic Division COVID-19 Curricular Advisory Group, and Academic Division COVID-19 Task Force (see the Provost's Newsletters for context) have developed statements for inclusion in Summer Term II courses with in-person elements. These statements are below.

Health Directives

All students and campus employees must follow university, county, and state health directives. If those directives change during the semester, I will formally announce it to the class.

Failure to comply with physical distancing and other health directives will be interpreted as violating the Student Code of Conduct as articulated in the sections describing "Concern for Self and Others" and "Disruption of University Community."

Attendance & Participation

You should not, under any circumstances, come to an in-person class if you are experiencing symptoms of any communicable disease, especially COVID-19. Face-to-face attendance will be interpreted as an attestation of health. The university's policy this term is that a failure to attend class will not, in itself, cause any reduction in your grade.

However, it is your responsibility to ensure that you understand the work that was done in person or in a synchronous online experience that you missed, and your responsibility to complete any work that is assigned during or in lieu of a session.

Should your health or circumstances change in a way that will impact your long-term ability to participate in class, you should notify me as soon as possible.

Attendance will be tracked for every in-person class, and may be reported to the COVID-19 Site Director for purposes of contact tracing.

The Phase 2 higher education guidance calls for a mandatory period of quarantine for two weeks for those persons who are returning from travel to a non-contiguous state (that is, anywhere but Idaho, Oregon, or within Washington). Please refrain from such travel for the duration of our term.

Health Attestation

Prior to coming to campus/class, students are required to complete the online health attestation survey, available on the university's website.

Cleaning Learning Spaces

Students are expected to clean their personal workspace (including any equipment they may have used) at the beginning and end of each class session, using supplies provided by the university.

Hand Washing

Please clean your hands frequently, either with sanitizer or by washing them with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.

Physical Distancing & Face Coverings

All members of the university community are expected to maintain physical distance of at least 6 feet whenever possible.

To reduce the risk of transmission, and in accordance with public health requirements, masks or other face coverings are required by campus community members in all indoor spaces, including classrooms. Face coverings should be put on prior to entering buildings.

Failure to comply will be interpreted as violating the Student Code of Conduct as articulated in the sections describing “Concern for Self and Others” and “Disruption of University Community” and will be reported accordingly.
