

LET'S REDEFINE THE SWEET LIFE

DIABETES

You can make changes to control or even prevent type 2 diabetes altogether. Either way, balanced nutrition and regular exercise are the keys to living a sweet life.

Quit while you're ahead

Smokers are 30–40% more likely to develop type 2 diabetes than nonsmokers.* Ready to quit? Get help breaking the habit at kp.org/quitsmoking.

Watch for sneaky sugars

Hidden sugar in savory staples like pasta sauce and salad dressing add up fast – and won't satisfy a sweet tooth! Compare labels to pick low-sugar options.

Make more moves

Mix up your fitness routine. Cardio and strength training can help control type 2 diabetes, but the greatest benefit comes from a workout schedule that includes both.
