

What's behind the glass?

At PLU, we have two rows of simulation suites. Both suites include a simulation room, control room, and debriefing room. In the simulation room, there is a one-way glass that allows the Simulation Operation Specialist (SOS) and Facilitator to watch while they are in the control room. In the control room- the SOS manages a 3-monitor computer that runs the simulator and patient monitor. As the students assess their patient, perform clinical skills and provide nursing interventions, the SOS voices the patient and changes the patient's status in real time.
