

KILLER DRONES

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY

Thursday, November 8, 2012

7:00 PM – 9:00 PM

Pacific Lutheran University's Scandinavian Cultural Center

THE ETHICS OF LETHAL DRONE WARFARE

In the world of high-tech warfare, where computers and predator drones are on the front lines, what are the ethics of deciding who is targeted and killed?

Zeroing in on Drones, by Cindy Weiss, April 10, 2012, University of Connecticut
<http://today.uconn.edu/blog/2012/04/zeroing-in-on-drones/>

Please join Dr. Bradley J. Strawser, for a presentation on the ethics of lethal drone warfare, followed by a response by Dr. Pauline Kaurin and a discussion with the audience.

Sponsors: The Philosophy Department and The International Honors Program

For more information contact: Professor Kaurin 253-535-8739/Kaurinpa@plu.edu

Dr. Bradley J. Strawser is editor of Killing by Remote Control: The Ethics of an Unmanned Military (Oxford University Press, forthcoming) and the guest-editor of a special issue of the Journal of Military Ethics on the ethics of cyber-war. He's been interviewed by, consulted for, or had work appear in: The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The UK Guardian, NPR, BBC World Service, Al Jazeera, Salon.com, Analysis, The Journal of Military Ethics, Philosophia, The Journal of Human Rights, Epoché, a PBS program, and others. Prior to his current position at the Naval Postgraduate School, he was an Air Force officer, a Resident Research Fellow at the Stockdale Center, and taught philosophy at the University of Connecticut and the US Air Force Academy in Colorado.

