The Potential Political Effects of Biased Teaching in Social Studies and History

•••

Andrew Northam

Intro/Research Question

How and why could the political opinions of students be affected by the biased teaching of social studies and history teachers?

So What?

Political division is sewn by the lack of diversity of thought

Students are politically vulnerable at a young age

Thesis

Students' diversity of opinion is harmed by biased teaching and objective learning is the most productive way for students to learn and think for themselves.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN PREACHING & TEACHING?

Case Selection

- Examine where political socialization can take place outside the family, like schools (Jensen, Palonsky)
- Survey of over 1200 educators in social sciences, looking for political affiliation (Pritchard)
- Survey of educators seeking definition of what history means to present bias (Yilmaz)

Research Design

Find where socialization take place

Examine effects of biased teaching

Show that biased teaching is prevalent

Analysis

- Political socialization can take place in schools
- Educators have an overwhelmingly left wing bias towards politics
- Positives and negatives to biased teaching and objectivity

Conclusion

The benefits of objective learning share the benefits of biased teaching, while adding diversity of thought and independence to students' minds.

Sources

Armor, J. David, et al. "Professors' Attitudes Toward the Vietnam War," Public Opinion Quarterly, 31 (Summer 1967), 159-75.

Caughie, Pamela L. "Impassioned Teaching." Academe 93, no. 4 (2007): 54-56. www.jstor.org/stable/40253083.

Ginocchio, Frederick L. "The Problems of Bias in the Teaching of Social Studies." The Clearing House 55, no. 7 (1982): 311-14.

www.jstor.org/stable/30186124.

Jensen, Gale, and Albert Schrader. "Socialization." Review of Educational Research 35, no. 3 (1965): 201-08. www.jstor.org/stable/1169826.

Maranto, Robert, and Matthew Woessner. "Diversifying the Academy: How Conservative Academics Can Thrive in Liberal Academia." PS:

Political Science and Politics 45, no. 3 (2012): 469-74. www.jstor.org/stable/41691363.

Palonsky, Stuart B. "Political Socialization in Elementary Schools." The Elementary School Journal 87, no. 5 (1987): 493–505.

www.jstor.org/stable/1001427.

Pritchard, Keith W., Sing-Nan Fen, and Thomas H. Buxton. "The Political Leanings of College Teachers of Education in Eight Selected

Universities and Colleges." The Western Political Quarterly 24, no. 3 (1971): 549-59. www.jstor.org/stable/446923

Sources Continued

Trevelyan, G. M. "BIAS IN HISTORY." History, NEW SERIES, 32, no. 115 (1947): 1-15. www.istor.org/stable/24402089.

Woodward, E. L. ""BIAS" IN THE TEACHING OF HISTORY AT PUBLIC SCHOOLS." History, NEW SERIES, 19, no. 75 (1934): 234-44. www.jstor.org/stable/24401240.

Yee, Robert. "Faculty Participation in the 1960 Presidential Election," Western Political Quarterly, 16 (March 1963), 213-20.

Yilmaz, Kaya. "Social Studies Teachers' Conceptions of History: Calling on Historiography." The Journal of Educational Research 101, no. 3

(2008): 158-75. www.jstor.org/stable/27548231.