

Department of Psychology Award for Merit in Service

In keeping with the mission of Pacific Lutheran University, the Psychology Department each year recognizes one Psychology major for their service to the department and its program. Such service can take many forms including exemplary scholarship, leadership, or apprenticeship. However, the department equally recognizes the student whose quiet, steady contribution of time, energy, and effort to the goals of the Psychology program does not call attention to itself, but is the bedrock of our program's functioning and ultimately the reason for our program's existence.

The Merit in Service Award honors our majors who - through their consistent participation in program activities, through their support for their fellow students, through their volunteer contributions on campus and in the community, and by their personal dedication to the ethics and values of our discipline -personify our hopes for our students' future lives of service.
