TACOMA, Wash – Pacific Lutheran University and the School of Arts and Communication (SOAC) announce the fourth annual SOAC FOCUS Series theme: Perspective.

The SOAC Focus Series brings together SOAC’s talented students and faculty to examine a chosen theme through a multi-disciplinary approach. Through music, art, dance, theatre, and communication we will come together to explore perspective, the connection of people, disciplines, and the ideas that draw meaning to our world view.

“Perspective is a common idea across our disciplines - visual artists study its tangible approaches, practicing how one line connects to another to create a whole image; musicians explore the relationship between harmonies, tonalities and instrumental timbres; theatre majors analyze characters and events in history to develop a greater understanding of the role that they will perform; and communication students are constantly examining their own views of the world.” Cameron Bennett, Dean of the School of Arts and Communication, said. “It’s all about perspective - how one idea or person connects to another, relates to their discipline, and impacts our vision and understanding.”

Past themes have explored compassion (2012), empowerment (2013), and entrepreneurship (2014). Gain a new perspective and join us in Spring 2015 for this dynamic series. Watch for event announcements early this fall.

The School of Arts and Communication at Pacific Lutheran University houses the Departments of Art & Design, Communication & Theatre, and Music and presents more than 250 events each season. Pacific Lutheran University offers approximately 3,500 students a unique blend of academically rigorous liberal arts and professional programs. Students develop skills in decision-making, analysis, communication and reasoning that prepare them for a lifetime of success – both in their careers and in service to others.

For additional information, call the School of Arts and Communication at 253-535-7150 or email soac@plu.edu.