

You are invited to be part of this SPECIAL TOPICS COURSE if:

1. You are interested in learning about health care social work.
2. You are interested in serving youth, families, & communities in the field of health care.
3. You are interested in the interrelationship between health & mental health care.
4. In good academic standing.

Students majoring in Social Work, Sociology, Psychology, or Nursing are especially encouraged to take this course.

The Department of Social Work is offering a SPECIAL TOPICS COURSE on:

Social Work & Health Care (SOCW 387)

Students will:

1. Learn about social work practice in health care settings, including work in acute inpatient settings, community health clinics, & agencies.
2. Explore the historic context of medical social work and consider trends in its development and orientations.
3. Consider guidelines for the provision of care to diverse populations.
4. Begin developing the skills required for effective health care social work practice.

Location/Times

This 4-credit class will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 11:50am-1:35pm in ADMN.

FALL 2022

Instructor: Ren Winnett, DSW, LICSW
Questions can be directed to David Simpson
simpsoda@plu.edu