PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Why study meaning and purpose?

In addition to providing upper division credit, this student success course is designed to assist students in cultivating meaningful lives and relationships that extend beyond PLU and following graduation. This course dives deep into the big questions of life and how to live with a sense of meaning and purpose, sometimes called vocation. The study of vocation allows for a recognition of one's unique talents, gifts, values and abilities as well as the needs of others, communities, and the earth.

Why study meaning and purpose at Holden Village?

The remote setting of Holden Village and the Holden Village community provides an opportunity for deep immersion in this unique learning lab. You will be exposed to an array of diverse vocation narratives from various faith perspectives, ethical traditions, and human perspectives that will serve as conversation partners for your own examination.

This course seeks to embrace and work in concert with the vision and mission of Holden Village which aligns with the values and purposes of Lutheran Higher Education and the Wild Hope Center for Vocation. In short, the vision of Holden Village is to cultivate a more just, sustainable, and compassionate world.
